Teasdale unveils energy conservation plan

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale Wednesday unveiled Missouri's first comprehensive energy conservation plan, which is aimed at helping homeowners and businessmen hold down their utility and energy costs.

The plan has been submitted to the Federal Energy Administration. It is designed to reduce Missouri's projected 1980 energy usage by at least five per cent.

"This is the first step in developing a strong energy program for Missouri," Gov. Teasdale said. "Major recommendations are aimed at developing programs to help homeowners and businessmen reduce their energy costs."

The plan includes programs to promote energy efficiency standards for new construction, industrial energy conservation, transportation ridesharing, modification of existing structures for better energy efficiency and utility involvement in energy conservation.

A major portion of the plan is devoted to state government's energy consumption.

"We cannot expect Missourians to be energy conscious if state government is not. Therefore, I will take steps to reduce energy consumption in state buildings, promote efficient state motor vehicle operation and establish energy efficiency standards for state purchasing," Gov. Teasdale explained. "In the near future I will issue the first phase of an executive policy regarding specific energy conservation measures for state agencies. These will include an automobile purchasing policy and efficiency standards for new state construction."

During the next six weeks, public hearings will be held in the state in an effort to obtain additional consumer and business comments on the plan. "We may modify some proposals and add others as the hearings progress. "I want public input and participation in this plan. The success of the plan and any energy program depends on citizen involvement," Gov. Teasdale said.

"In addition, the Department of Natural Resoruces will continue to develop details of the long- range goals for energy conservation. As I stated in my legislative message, the need for energy planning and a strong energy program are essential to the future of our state," Gov. Teasdale added.

Major elements of the plan are:

Programs to promote modification of existing building and homes. Through relatively low-cost modifications, it is estimated that energy consumption in existing commercial - institutional buildings can be reduced from 20-40 per cent. According to the plan, energy consumption in the average Missouri home could be reduced by as much as 73 per cent with a $1,300 investment. This investment could be recovered in no more than four years through reduced utility bills.

Missouri will introduce programs to: 1) Establish a clearinghouse for information on how the owner can modify his building or home 2) Conduct workshops and seminars on building modifications 3) Support energy expositions to demonstrate the latest in available energy conserving materials and equipment 4) Provide an energy walk-through or audit seminars to commercial-institutional building managers and homeowners requesting assistace 5) Examine financial incentives to promote use of energy efficient equipment and alternative energy systems such as solar water heating and solar space heating systems, and 6) Establish a $5 million loan and grant fund, through the Missouri Housing Development Commission for weatherization of homes of low-income and elderly citizens.

Programs to promote energy efficiency standards for new construction. Proper design of new buildings and homes can reduce average building energy consumption significantly. Incorporation of thermal efficiencies into new buildings has been shown to actually decrease construction costs.

The plan will focus on encouraging local building code authorities to adopt energy efficiency standards. State legislation also will be proposed requiring enforcement by the local authorities. Those areas of the state not covered by buildings codes, including rural communities and farming areas, will be excluded from the requirements of the legislation.

Programs to promote transportation ridesharing. In addition to a statewide ridesharing promotion and assistance program, the plan calls for legislation to: 1) Provide a direct tax credit for vanpool, carpool, and transit programs, 2) Provide tax incentives such as low license fees for firms in Missouri which purchase vans for pooling, 3) Create reserve lanes on multi-lane highways for car-van pools with three or more people and for buses, 4) Encourage the development of park and ride facilities throughout the state.

The plan supports merging the Highway Department with the Department of Transportation.

Programs to promote utility involvement in conservation. The plan calls upon the Public Service Commission to seek utility involvement in both providing and promoting a full range of material and equipment modifications to existing homes, such as installation of automatic thermostats and gas furance flue adapters.

The plan also promotes development of Public Service Commission orders or legislation requiring : 1) That new residential or commercial buildings meet specified energy efficiency standards prior to the building being connected for service

Testimony completed in Moit murder trial

BENTON— The defense rested its case at 11:35 a.m. today in the murder trial of Manuel Allen Moit, 25, of Bertrand that started Tuesday in Scott County Circuit Court. Moit is charged with the Capital murder in the July 30, 1976 slaying of James Edward "Jamie" Helmes Jr., 23, of Sikeston.

Defense attorneys called 11 witnesses, including Magistrate Judge Lloyd Briggs, Scott County Sheriff Bill Ferrell, Moit's former girl friend, Lana Dillender, and his mother, Mable Moit.

The defense was unsuccessful in an attempt to establish motives for three other individuals in the Helmes murder. In questioning the three young men, out of hearing of jurors, defense attorneys asked them directly if they killed Jamie Helmes or ever said they killed him. All of the men, Stanley L. Fiscus, 21, of Charleston, Dale Crump, 26, of East Prairie and Willie Dean Keene, 23, of East Prairie, denied knowledge of the murder and denied ever telling anyone that they committed the murder.

In the absence of any hard evidence that the three were implicated in the killing, Special Judge Stanley A. Grimm disallowed the testimony and refused to let the jury hear it.

Helmes' former girl friend, Lana Joyce Dillender, 26, of Sikeston Route Four, testified that she saw Jamie Helmes in the house where she stayed with Helmes' family, after all cars had left.

The prosecution had contended throughout the trial that Helmes left the house with Moit in Moit's mother's car.

Mable Moit of Bertrand, mother of the defendant, stated that Manuel came to the residence they share in Bertrand at 3:30 a.m. on July 30, the date of Helmes' death.

The prosecution rested its case Wednesday, after calling witnesses to the stand.

Testimony from the witnesses ranged from statements supposedly made by Moit to Mrs. Elsie Helmes, mother of Jamie Helmes, on July 30, 1976, nine days before Jamie's body was found in Northcutt Ditch near Diehlstadt, to a number of witnesses which put Moit in possession of a .380 caliber automatic pistol on July 19, 1976, the same caliber of the type bullet Helmes was killed with.

Elsie Helmes, the last of the state witnesses, when questioned by Scott County Prosecutor David Shy as to the relationship of her son, Jamie, and Manuel Moit during the last two months prior to Jamie's death, replied that Moit had been over to see Jamie a few times. However, in the last two weeks of that period he had been over a couple of times.

When asked if Moit had come to the house on July 30, 1976 she said he had around 9 p.m. and that during conversation, Moit said to her "Just think, I was the last one to see Jamie alive" and that he further said "I hope I didn't mess up your bath room when I came in last night".

On cross examination, defense attorney asked her if Moit had said "Guess I was the last one to see Jamie last night", to which Mrs. Helmes replied, "No, he said, just think I was the last one to see Jamie alive' ".

At this time the state said it had no more witnesses.

Just before the testimony of Mrs. Helmes, the jury heard from Howard Toney of Bertrand, who testified that on July 30, 1976, about 5 or 6 p.m., he was in Sikeston getting gas and then his car wouldn't start and Moit helped him jump the car's battery to get started, then they both drove to the home of Diane Butler in Sikeston, Moit's girl friend, where they started drinking.

Toney said shortly before 9 p.m. he and Moit went for a ride by Jamie's house, when Moit stopped and went in.

After not staying too long, Moit came out and they returned to the Butler woman's house before he and Moit went to the Wal-Mart store to pick up Toney's girl friend, Mona Thompson, from work about 9:55 p.m. and returned to the Butler home.

When asked by Prosecutor Shy if he had seen Moit with a gun, Toney said later in the evening Moit handed him a gun and that he handed it to Mona who also looked at it and returned it to Moit.

Shy then asked if he had seen Moit in the last week. Toney hesitated before answering, then said, yes, in Charleston. When asked what was said between them, hesitating again, Toney replied that Moit had told him that he thought Toney could put him in the pen.

Shy then inquired if Toney remembered the day Moit was arrested. Replying yes, he said he had driven over to Diane Butler's house late in the morning that day and after speaking to Diane, he learned that Moit had been arrested and asked her if she had gotten rid of the gun. He said she replied, yes.

When asked by defense attorney if he knew why Moit went to Jamie's house the evening of July 30, Toney said no, but that Moit had said he and Jamie had had their differences but that it had been resolved.

Shy then asked Toney, "did you ever ask Moit if he had killed Jamie? he replied, "yes." Then Shy asked what was Moit's answer, to which Toney said he never answered.

Defense attorney then asked if Toney had ever heard Moit say he had killed Jamie and he replied, "no."

In earlier testimony by Mona Thompson, she said Moit and her boyfriend, Howard Toney, had picked her up from work about 9:55 or 10 p.m. July 30, 1976 and they went to the Butler woman's home where they started drinking and smoking pot and that later Mike Gentry stopped by the Butler home and the subject of the gun came up and she heard Moit tell Diane to "go get the gun and show it to Howard and I."

Public hearing set June 28 on Highway 60 interchanges

DEXTER — A public hearing on interchange location for a four-lane Highway 60 through Dexter will be held June 28, at 7 p.m. at Dexter High School auditorium.

State Highway Commission District Engineer Lionel Murray, Sikeston, made the announcement.

The hearing will be for testimony on proposed interchange locations on the proposed four-lane Highway 60, the main east-west corrider through Southeast Missouri and Dexter.

Initial interchange locations listed by the department call for an interchange at the intersection of Highway 60 and Route AD, a future interchange at Highway 60 and Route ZZ and keeping the interchange at Highway 60 and 25. Also, outer roads are listed on the Department's proposals. The lack of an interchange at the One Mile Road intersection with Highway 60, near the Dexter Memorial Hospital, has drawn some criticism.

The hearings, originally scheduled for February, had been delayed by detailed planning work, Murray said.

The hearing notice says that "all interested persons will be given an opportunity to be heard concerning their views on the corridor location and design of Route 60, Stoddard County, with reference to its economic and social effects, its impact on the environment and its consistency with the goals and objectives of such planning as may have been promulgated by the community."

The proposed improvement project is adjacent to existing Highway 60, beginning 0.4 mile east of existing Highway 51 and continuing easterly to the existing Highway 60 and 25 interchange near Dexter.

The proposal is to bring Highway 60 up to a dual lane freeway by stages. Included in the proposal are thenecessary interchanges grade separations and frontage roads required to meet freeway standards.

The statement says "Maps, plants, environmental statements and other detail information prepared by the State Highway Department, or interested agency, will be available for public inspection and copying at the office of the District Engineer of the State Highway Department, Highway 61 North, Sikeston, Missouri, 36801. Written statements and exhibits, as well as oral statements, will be received at the hearing. Written statements and exhibits will be a part of the public hearing transcript if received within 10 days after the date of the hearing.

The statement also notes that "Relocation advisory assistance will be available for all persons displaced as a result of this improvement. Relocation assistance programs will be discussed as will be tentative schedules for right-of-way acquisition and construction."

Teasdale unveils energy conservation plan

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale Wednesday unveiled Missouri's first comprehensive energy conservation plan, which is aimed at helping homeowners and businessmen hold down their utility and energy costs.

The plan has been submitted to the Federal Energy Administration. It is designed to reduce Missouri's projected 1980 energy usage by at least five per cent.

"This is the first step in developing a strong energy program for Missouri," Gov. Teasdale said. "Major recommendations are aimed at developing programs to help homeowners and businessmen reduce their energy costs."

The plan includes programs to promote energy efficiency standards for new construction, industrial energy conservation, transportation ridesharing, modification of existing structures for better energy efficiency and utility involvement in energy conservation.

A major portion of the plan is devoted to state government's energy consumption.

"We cannot expect Missourians to be energy conscious if state government is not. Therefore, I will take steps to reduce energy consumption in state buildings, promote efficient state motor vehicle operation and establish energy efficiency standards for state purchasing," Gov. Teasdale explained. "In the near future I will issue the first phase of an executive policy regarding specific energy conservation measures for state agencies. These will include an automobile purchasing policy and efficiency standards for new state construction."

During the next six weeks, public hearings will be held in the state in an effort to obtain additional consumer and business comments on the plan. "We may modify some proposals and add others as the hearings progress. "I want public input and participation in this plan. The success of the plan and any energy program depends on citizen involvement," Gov. Teasdale said.

"In addition, the Department of Natural Resoruces will continue to develop details of the long- range goals for energy conservation. As I stated in my legislative message, the need for energy planning and a strong energy program are essential to the future of our state," Gov. Teasdale added.

Major elements of the plan are:

Programs to promote modification of existing building and homes. Through relatively low-cost modifications, it is estimated that energy consumption in existing commercial - institutional buildings can be reduced from 20-40 per cent. According to the plan, energy consumption in the average Missouri home could be reduced by as much as 73 per cent with a $1,300 investment. This investment could be recovered in no more than four years through reduced utility bills.

Missouri will introduce programs to: 1) Establish a clearinghouse for information on how the owner can modify his building or home 2) Conduct workshops and seminars on building modifications 3) Support energy expositions to demonstrate the latest in available energy conserving materials and equipment 4) Provide an energy walk-through or audit seminars to commercial-institutional building managers and homeowners requesting assistace 5) Examine financial incentives to promote use of energy efficient equipment and alternative energy systems such as solar water heating and solar space heating systems, and 6) Establish a $5 million loan and grant fund, through the Missouri Housing Development Commission for weatherization of homes of low-income and elderly citizens.

Programs to promote energy efficiency standards for new construction. Proper design of new buildings and homes can reduce average building energy consumption significantly. Incorporation of thermal efficiencies into new buildings has been shown to actually decrease construction costs.

The plan will focus on encouraging local building code authorities to adopt energy efficiency standards. State legislation also will be proposed requiring enforcement by the local authorities. Those areas of the state not covered by buildings codes, including rural communities and farming areas, will be excluded from the requirements of the legislation.

Programs to promote transportation ridesharing. In addition to a statewide ridesharing promotion and assistance program, the plan calls for legislation to: 1) Provide a direct tax credit for vanpool, carpool, and transit programs, 2) Provide tax incentives such as low license fees for firms in Missouri which purchase vans for pooling, 3) Create reserve lanes on multi-lane highways for car-van pools with three or more people and for buses, 4) Encourage the development of park and ride facilities throughout the state.

The plan supports merging the Highway Department with the Department of Transportation.

Programs to promote utility involvement in conservation. The plan calls upon the Public Service Commission to seek utility involvement in both providing and promoting a full range of material and equipment modifications to existing homes, such as installation of automatic thermostats and gas furance flue adapters.

The plan also promotes development of Public Service Commission orders or legislation requiring : 1) That new residential or commercial buildings meet specified energy efficiency standards prior to the building being connected for service

However, in the last two weeks of that period he had been over a couple of times.

When asked if Moit had come to the house on July 30, 1976 she said he had around 9 p.m. and that during conversation, Moit said to her "Just think, I was the last one to see Jamie alive" and that he further said "I hope I didn't mess up your bath room when I came in last night".

On cross examination, defense attorney asked her if Moit had said "Guess I was the last one to see Jamie last night", to which Mrs. Helmes replied, "No, he said, just think I was the last one to see Jamie alive' ".

At this time the state said it had no more witnesses.

Just before the testimony of Mrs. Helmes, the jury heard from Howard Toney of Bertrand, who testified that on July 30, 1976, about 5 or 6 p.m., he was in Sikeston getting gas and then his car wouldn't start and Moit helped him jump the car's battery to get started, then they both drove to the home of Diane Butler in Sikeston, Moit's girl friend, where they started drinking.

Toney said shortly before 9 p.m. he and Moit went for a ride by Jamie's house, when Moit stopped and went in.

After not staying too long, Moit came out and they returned to the Butler woman's house before he and Moit went to the Wal-Mart store to pick up Toney's girl friend, Mona Thompson, from work about 9:55 p.m. and returned to the Butler home.

When asked by Prosecutor Shy if he had seen Moit with a gun, Toney said later in the evening Moit handed him a gun and that he handed it to Mona who also looked at it and returned it to Moit.

Shy then asked if he had seen Moit in the last week. Toney hesitated before answering, then said, yes, in Charleston. When asked what was said between them, hesitating again, Toney replied that Moit had told him that he thought Toney could put him in the pen.

Shy then inquired if Toney remembered the day Moit was arrested. Replying yes, he said he had driven over to Diane Butler's house late in the morning that day and after speaking to Diane, he learned that Moit had been arrested and asked her if she had gotten rid of the gun. He said she replied, yes.

When asked by defense attorney if he knew why Moit went to Jamie's house the evening of July 30, Toney said no, but that Moit had said he and Jamie had had their differences but that it had been resolved.

Shy then asked Toney, "did you ever ask Moit if he had killed Jamie? he replied, "yes." Then Shy asked what was Moit's answer, to which Toney said he never answered.

Defense attorney then asked if Toney had ever heard Moit say he had killed Jamie and he replied, "no."

In earlier testimony by Mona Thompson, she said Moit and her boyfriend, Howard Toney, had picked her up from work about 9:55 or 10 p.m. July 30, 1976 and they went to the Butler woman's home where they started drinking and smoking pot and that later Mike Gentry stopped by the Butler home and the subject of the gun came up and she heard Moit tell Diane to "go get the gun and show it to Howard and I."

Stroud jailed in stabbings

DEXTER — Wilbur Stroud, 25, of Route Two is being held in Stoddard County Jail at Bloomfield in connection with two stabbings Wednesday night, police said.

Stroud has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

The incident occurred at 10:50 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Kenneth Julian, 1402 Ray St.

Knifed were Wanda Pherigo of Dexter and Edward Boyt of Oklahoma, who were treated and released at Dexter Memorial Hospital.

The weapon used was a pocket knife.

Police did not know this morning what the fight was about, but said the three had apparently been drinking.

Also arrested Wednesday morning in another incident on a charge of underage possession of beer and a misdemeanor possession of marijuana were Margaret Higgs of Malden and Elmer Clark of Essex.

The two were released after pleading guilty in City Court and being fined $50 each by Judge Herb Aarant.

Book-a-Rama closes doors

Book-a-Rama, a pornographic bookstore on East Center Street, has closed its doors.

The store, which specialized in selling sexaully-explicit materials, had been an object of controversy ever since it opened about one month ago.

Store owners were not available for comment this morning. The store was locked and the books were packed in cardboard boxes.

The owners reportedly began moving out of the building Tuesday.

Costin trial set Aug. 19

BLOOMFIELD— Trial of Clyde Costin of Dexter, charged with showing an obscene movie in Dexter in November, 1976, under the city's anti-pornography ordinance, has been set for Aug. 19.

Circuit Judge Flake McHaney set the trial date during court proceedings Wednesday.

He did not act, however, on a motion to dismiss the case filed earlier this year by defense attorneys.

Fortner case transferred

BLOOMFIELD— A change of venue has been granted by Judge Flake McHaney in the case of Cecil Fortner, 45, of Dexter, charged with two incidents of homosexual activities with young boys.

McHaney ordered the case transferred to Dunklin County, also under his jurisdiction, and set the trial date for Sept. 2.

Fortner is now free on bond.

Man arrested in stolen car

Public safety officers arrested an Oran man Wednesday afternoon, shortly after he allegedly stole a car in Scott City.

Lloyd Turner was taken into custody by Public Safety Director Kenneth Francis and Detective Lt. Jack Patterson at 4:30 p.m. near the Holiday Inn.

He was driving an automobile allegedly stolen at 3:25 p.m. from Melburne Hedge of Scott City.

The Public Safety Department had been asked by Cape Girardeau police to watch for the car.

Thief robs sleeping man

Thieves took $196 out of a sleeping man's pocket and $35 in change from amusement machines in two thefts reported to the Public Safety Department.

Freddie Warren, 1506 W. North St., told officers that someone entered his unlocked mobile home about 12:30 p.m. Wednesday while he was asleep and took $196 from a front pocket of the pants he was wearing.

Someone took about $35 in change from three pinball machines and two pool tables at Imperial Bowling Lanes, 1601 E. Malone Avenue. The theft occurred sometime between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 3 a.m. Wednesday.

MEN OF INTELLIGENCE?

Watergate, which we had thought was pretty much a closed chapter, is back on everyone's mind again thanks to the Frost- Nixon television "unspectaculars." While nothing has emerged from these interviews to change many people's opinions on the subject, coincidentally and for what it is worth, two researchers at the University of California have reported some interesting results from an analysis of the famous Watergate tapes.

Charlotte Linde, a professor of linguistics, and Joseph S. Goguen, a professor of computer science, spent eight months analyzing key passages in the tape transcripts with the aim of understanding the structure of planning and how decisions are made.

At first reading, they say, the transcripts seemed to be sloppy and the work of disorganized minds. But when the conversations were stripped of excess wordage (expletives?) and diagrammed on a treelike pattern, they found a "dazzlingly regular and complex structure" which revealed the work of "highly intelligent and skilled political strategists."

Nixon, for example, has been criticized for rambling. But at least in the planning sessions, he came across as very skilled. "He controlled the facts, and his questions came right to the point."

The researchers also acquired a great deal of admiration for the verbal expertise of H. R. Haldeman, the former president's chief of staff. "He liked to have many plans in the works at the same time, even though they were aimed at one goal."

John Dean, who eventually brought the whole complex structure crashing down on all their heads, is also credited with having "really done his homework" and presenting "well-thought- out and developed options."

The closer they looked at the transcripts, say Linde and Goguen, the more obvious it became that Nixon and his advisors perceived the Watergate break-in as a public relations problem.

As for the moral implications of their actions, "A small group of acquaintances rarely discuss morality. They know each other's values. The absence of moral discussion on the tapes is not sufficient to prove that they were not moral people."

They just happened to conspire to deceive the American people and obstruct justice in a criminal investigation.

The scholars point out that their research interests are scientific, not political. Actually, in showing the cleverness of the Watergate crew, their analysis of the tapes constitutes one more damning indictment — if anybody needs another one.

Nixon, Haldeman, Dean, et al as "highly intelligent and skilled political strategists"?

In the only analysis that really mattered — by the House Judiciary Committee and the majority of Americans — they revealed themselves to be probably the stupidest men ever to occupy positions of great power and trust in the nation's history.

THE REAL DISCRIMINATION

WASHINGTON— There is a lot of talk about reform in education. I haven't given this problem much thought until recently when I went on the commencement talk circuit.

It dawned on me that everywhere I went there was something wrong with the graduating class. I couldn't put my finger on it until the students started to receive their diplomas. Then it hit me! The most prevailing discrimination in our schools has to do with people's names.

In every graduating class, the students whose names started with A, B, C and up to L had the best seats up front. The graduates whose last names started with M and ended with Z were stuck in the back. They could not even see the platform because the A to L people were wearing mortarboards and blocking their view.

The A to L group were always the first in the graduation procession marching smartly down the aisles as parents kept snapping photos of them. The M to Z group straggled behind listlessly, failing to keep in step, knowing that by the time they walked by their parents would have run out of film.

After the hymns and speeches the president started to award the diplomas. The audience would be up for the A's and the B's and these students would get the loudest applause. But I noticed as time went on the crowd would become more and more bored, and the applause got less and less. By the time the president got to Mindlin, the only applause you could hear was from the graduate's relatives. When Wyzinski received his diploma it was so quiet you could hear a pin drop.

If it was just graduation exercises we wouldn't have to worry about the problem. But alphabetical discrimination begins the day a child enters grammar school for the first time. Most children on their first day of school are excited about their new life experience.

Then the teacher starts calling their names: "Abernathy, you have the first seat. Altshuler, you have the second seat, Brown the third" and so on. As she reads off the names the child, whose last name starts with a P, an R or an S, is in panic. Will there be enough seats left for him? There usually are, but of course they're in the back of the room. This is the child's first realization that for the rest of his or her life he or she will have to wait until the A to L group's needs are attended to.

When report cards are given out, the Petersons and Raphaels and the Steiglitzes have twice as long to wait for the ax to fall as the Allens, Berliners and Kennedys. In gym classes the Caldwells and Daltons and Evertons and Flahertys get the best lockers and newest equipment. A Youngstein usually winds up with a pair of gym shorts that don't fit him.

When the kids move on to high school the alphabetical discrimination continues. If they apply for college, the A to L group's applications are always on the top if the pile. It takes weeks, sometimes months, for the college admissions director to get down to Shreiner and Thomosino.

Many state universities have been aware of the problem and to solve it they give students numbers instead of names. The only thing wrong with this system is that the numbers are issued alphabetically, and the A to L group get the lower numbers and the M to Z group are stuck with ones so long that they are impossible to remember.

The final indignity comes when the student graduates from college or university and can't find a job. He or she then has to go to the unemployment office to pick up a check. Ackerman gets his by 9:30 in the morning and can spend the rest of the afternoon at the movies. Zuckerman is still there until 5 and has blown the whole day.

What is obviously needed is an Equal Alphabetical Rights Amendment to guarantee against discrimination in last names. I've only talked to two people about it. Gloria Steinem said she weould fight for it. But Bella Abzug said I was out of my mind.

There seems to be a feeling among businessmen that the great furor over environment problems will bring about a general stagnation of trade in the years to come.

The oppositie is likely to be true. Significant changes in the mode of living almost automatically bring about a vast demand for new goods and services.

Before the decade is over, probably most of us will be riding in different types of automobiles: someone will have to make, sell and buy the new vehicles.

By 1980 one-half of our population may be living in some new type of home, which will have to be made, sold and bought.

Already national industries and service companies have begun to see the advantage of relocating industries and headquarters in small cities -- and even in once decaying rural villages.

In the near future we must be using power sources which, at the present, have not been developed. This development portends new riches.

Sewage and garbage will become a blessing rather than a curse. After reporcessing it will become high quality fertilizer.

It is true that machines will do more and more work, at the same time creating more and better work for people. The chief enterprise of most persons will be performing an exchange of services.

All of this means new or revitalized business activity. The business man who anticipates and advertises to meet the new needs and wants will continue to be successful.

It caused something of a stir in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. Sitting in a barber's chair, Captain Clark Berkhoudt and his tonsorial friend heard cries for help and a scuffle next door. They investigated to find the aging shopkeeper neighbor wrestling with a holdup youth carrying a sawed-off rifle. The youth had been given money but, not satisfied, was demanding more, only to find that the aged shopkeeper had more spirit than given credit for and had grasped the gun and come to close grips with his assailant.

The youth had the shopkeeper on the floor when the captain and the barber appeared, and soon found himself grasped by the hair and the gun which he held tenaciously. The lad struck out, wounding the captain in the face, and fled, closely followed by the Army man. A second scuffle followed with more blows and a regular fight, till the youth again escaped, making for a getaway car which by this time had disappeared, the accomplice having taken fright. again Captain Berkhoudt gave chase but, not being a young man, was somewhat exhausted. A parking lot attendant also gave chase, and the youth was finally willing to give up quietly when the police appeared on the scene.

Local reporters took up the story, and the announcement of The Salvation Army's Eastern Territory slogan for this year's envangelistic campaign, "Involved with Christ," which was displayed on the outside of the Salvation Army building, gave one of them the heading for his article.

We are proud of our Salvation Army captain, of course. Much, much more of this public-spirited action in aiding the police to keep law and order in our land is needed. But the public is mistaken if it thinks that this kind of involvement is the most difficult and painful in which this captain and all other Salvation Army officers are engaged.

The issues are cut-and-dried when a captain tackles a holdup youth. It requires great physical courage and strength, but there is no ambiguity about who is in the wrong and who ought to be punished. But the issues are not so clear when the captain faces a dispirited youth, perhaps from a broken home, or perhaps deprived, by the economic situation in an affluent nation, of the opportunity to work. The youth's craving for significance or purpose is not then a wrong desire, and if he gets into trouble because these are not fulfilled, the blame is not so eady to apportion. In such an instance, the greatest courage comes for the captain in challenging the indifference of a bureaucratic system. Yes, knocking on closed doors in the cause of others is part of a Savlation Army officer's task.

A home situation might be one of his most tricky assignments. His interference might not be welcome, yet his Christian compassion will not let him wipe his hands of the case. It is not his face and arms which bleed in such an instance, but his heart. To tell a father or mother, wife or husband the patent truth about their actions and way of life, even when on behalf of one of the family, takes great courage and sensitivity, for "blood is thicker than water," and reason does not always triumph over sentiment.

But a spiritual situation demands everything from him. To talk to another about their way of life, their attitudes, their sins; to offer Christ as the way to forgiveness and restoration, even re-creation, and to have Christ's love spurned and defied, is his greatest pain and sorrow. This kind of courage and sacrifice never makes the headlines because it is never seen by the human eye. Even involvement on the human level is not the crucial experience it is for the captain. Human involvement requires only identification with one side. It does not necessarily include identification with more than one side.

For the captian, involvement with Christ means that he is not only the pursuer but the pursued, for Christ loves the winner even when he is the most rebellious. Society can well accept the lesson. Its responsibility lies with the assailant as well as the victim. In the last analysis, it must take the blame for both.

That is why our correctional services work, emphasized in this issue, is so important.

ADDING INSULT TO INJURY

There are times when we can almost feel sorry for the Russians. The embarrassment they suffered when one of their pilots defected (flying a MIG-25 Foxbat jet fighter to Japan) was great enough, but now a Japanese firm is coming out with a 12-inch plastic model of the Foxbat.

Anyone with $2 will be able to own a miniature of what had been the most secret aircraft in the Russian arsenal.

Japanese industry has a reputation for picking up a product, figuring out how to product it at less cost than the original, and selling it back to the people who invented it.

In this case, the Japanese plan only to produce the mantlepiece version of the Foxbat, but that is hardly a consolation to the Russians. Japan will undoubtedly want to crack the Soviet market with the model, adding the further insult of having a top military secret going for a few rubles in Moscow department stores — and marked "Made in Japan," at that. — Jefferson City News-Tribune

Medicaid-Medicare Mobsters: Crime syndicate buying hospitals, muscling physicians in Multi-Billion-Dollar rackets

WASHINGTON— The real crime combine -- of which the Mafia, as sophisticates know, is only a partner -- is cutting into the $40-billion-a-year Medicaid-Medicare-Welfare complex as definitely as Muhammad Ali waltzed with and took Alfredo Evangelista.

Evidence of this coast-to-coast infiltration and multi-billion-dollar sucking operation is flowing into federal investigative offices. From New York to Florida to California, especially in the two sunbelt states, the underworld is buying into hospitals, or outrightly purchasing them. Nor is the mob neglecting nursing homes, day care centers, home help agencies and other such facilities which can be used to steal from the government and provide a front for moving heroin.

The potential take is enormous. The combine has been watching the "amateurs" steal. The estimate developed by such authorities as the Senate Special Committee on Aging, for example, runs from a minimum of $5.8 billion to $7.6 billion a year in "hard fraud" and deliberate "over-utilization" (unnecessary service).

It all depends on how conservative your arithmetic is.

So underworld gambling money from Las Vegas has begun buying small hospitals in California and more recently in Florida, according to dedicated and knowledgeable sources. There's an ongoing investigation. So that's about all these probers would say.

The mob is also moving in on physicians. It's a new version of the old badger game. A doctor is offered a free trip to Vegas. There he or she is lodged in lavish accommodations. A heavy line of credit is extended in the gambling casinos. The food is free. The drinks cost less. The dice and the roulette wheels roll. Of course the medical person loses. Sometimes heavily.

The doctor is told not to worry about his gambling losses. Just fly home. The physician does. But the casino turns his IOUs over to the muscle for collection. Soft-voiced muscle. Modern type. Knows all about medical services, bills and computers.

So a few weeks later, the medical person who had such a bash in Las Vegas is telephoned. The collector is on the line. About the IOUs? No. Well, says the voice, we don't want to worry you about your losses. We just want to sell you our services. Our supplies. And collect your outstanding bills from delinquent patients and Medicaid-Medicare agencies -- at a commission.

Many doctors have been netted. They don't struggle. The new-type mobster moves up the pipeline. Pads the bills sent along to the Medicaid-Medicare-welfare bureaus.

All this is only part of the thievery which comes to some 10 per cent of the annual $18 billion Medicaid disbursement. Investigators for the Senate Special Committee on Aging estimate that this 10 per cent is in "hard fraud." Actual looting.

This would make a total of $1.8 billion a year ripped off the welfare system, which everybody is reforming these days we hear. This is a conservative estimate by hard-nosed and dedicated probers.

But there's Samuel K. Skinner, crusading U.S. Attorney in Chicago for the Northern District of Illinois. Authorities consider him one of the prosecutorial specialists in welfare crime. An he puts the "hard fraud" estimate at 20 per cent -- or $3.6 billion yearly.

You haven't heard anything yet: there's Medicare. It now runs at the rate of $22 billion annually. Some 10 per cent of that in "hard fraud" means a looters' take of $2.2 billion a year.

Thus even a cellar estimate puts the total amount of actual thievery of Medicaid and Medicare funds at $4 billion yearly. And a reasonable auditor could make a case for the higher figure of $5.8 billion stolen each year by fraudulent and ineligible Medicaid-Medicare clients, crooked physicians, unethical laboratories and money hungry pharmacists.

There's more. This develops in the gray area of over-utilization. For example, a doctor examines a welfare client. The physician orders a throat test. If it shows positive, then another test is required. But the unethical laboratories simply proceed to make both tests without awaiting the results of the first. Simple technique. And simple arithmetic, the multiplication by the millions, will show how those millions are ripped off, by double testing and double billing.

Authoritative sources in the Senate Special Committee on Aging put the over-utilization skimming at 10 per cent of the $18 billion in Medicaid. It could go for Medicare, too. Thus the loss to the federal, state and local governments could run a as high as $12 billion a year in hard fraud and dispensation of unnecessary services.

Obviously the underworld combine just isn't about to pass this blue-chip stuff by. And it isn't. It's the best thing to come down the pike since rum-running. And it's all so antiseptic.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Red Tape Saves Lives

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Bureaucratic red tape, if not President Carter's human rights policies, may have saved a few poor souls in El Salvador from being gunned down by the military dictatorship's tin soldiers.

The incident is worth recording as sad evidence that the bureaucrats in their State Department cubicles were paying little attention to the president's statements. Early in February, the military government of El Salvador placed an order with an American arms dealer for $96,227.85 worth of weapons, including hollow-point bullets and submachine guns.

These ugly goods, according to license applications filed with the State Department, were needed for "internal security." The applications didn't mention that the government had scheduled national elections on February 20, and expected trouble from a restive populace. The weapons were to be used, apparently, against opponents of the military regime.

State Department officials approved the sale, with the exception of a few items, in time for delivery before the election. But in a bureaucracy, a decision is seldom final. Any bureaucrat worth his salt will seek the endorsement of others to reduce his own liability. The weapons sale approval, therefore, was bucked to other desks for comment.

The national elections were held in El Salvador, meanwhile, without the extra hollow-point bullets and submachine guns. Ballot boxes, conveniently stuffed beforehand, were substituted for the real thing. Additional votes were cast in the names of citizens in the cemeteries.

Poll watchers, who questioned these tactics, were intimidated and arrested. To no one's great surprise, the military-backed candidates were triumphant. Protests by the opposition party were brutally suppressed. The government claimed only five people were killed, but our sources say at least a hundred El Salvadorans died.

This sort of unpleasantness could have backfired on the officials who approved the arms sale. They reconsidered the approval which, blessedly, was still circulating in the bureaucratic labyrinth. As one official put it delicately: "The passage of time had produced a different set of conditions in El Salvador."

The previous decision, therefore, was revoked. The sale of some weapons was flatly disapproved; others were held up for "further consideration." The bureaucrats, in other words, had unwittingly prevented the sale of arms which probably would have been used by the military dictatorship to fire upon those who dared to protest the fraudulent elections.

People Poisoning: Thousands of people have been poisoned and at least 40 people have died during the past five years as a result of the overuse of pesticides in Central America. The cotton fields have been saturated with some toxic chemicals that are now banned in the United States.

These are the findings of a United Nations environmental team, which conducted an 18-month study of pesticide use in the cotton-growing areas of El Salvador, Guatamala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

"To varying degrees," the team reported, "almost all components of the Central American ecosystem have been affected." In 1600 samples, the team found various levels of highly toxic DDT, deadly Parathion, and the suspected cancer-causing Toxophene.

The reckless use of pesticides has gone on for over 15 years under the auspices of the wealthy Central American families who own many of the cotton plantations. They've made huge fortunes by selling cotton to Asian countries which, in turn, manufacture clothing for U.S. markets.

At the same time, the environmental devastation caused by the pesticides has forced some impoverished small farmers to leave their land. Their pitiful plots have become so contaminated that they cannot grow enough corn and beans. This has turned them into peons who survive by working for the large cotton plantations.

It was not until some of the land barons' own cattle became contaminated that they began to be concerned about the problem. In the past 15 years, at least $1.7 million worth of beef cattle have been tainted by pesticides.

The UN team was brought to Central America to assess the damage and to introduce pest management techniques. Earlier UN efforts had already brought a gradual reduction in human poisoning from 6,078 cases in 1972 to 2,074 in 1975. The new UN team was able to reduce pesticide use by as much as 63 per cent on test plots.

Footnote: One insect that has resisted the poisonious environment is the tough malaria mosquito, which seems to thrive on pesticides. MEN OF INTELLIGENCE?

Watergate, which we had thought was pretty much a closed chapter, is back on everyone's mind again thanks to the Frost- Nixon television "unspectaculars." While nothing has emerged from these interviews to change many people's opinions on the subject, coincidentally and for what it is worth, two researchers at the University of California have reported some interesting results from an analysis of the famous Watergate tapes.

Charlotte Linde, a professor of linguistics, and Joseph S. Goguen, a professor of computer science, spent eight months analyzing key passages in the tape transcripts with the aim of understanding the structure of planning and how decisions are made.

At first reading, they say, the transcripts seemed to be sloppy and the work of disorganized minds. But when the conversations were stripped of excess wordage (expletives?) and diagrammed on a treelike pattern, they found a "dazzlingly regular and complex structure" which revealed the work of "highly intelligent and skilled political strategists."

Nixon, for example, has been criticized for rambling. But at least in the planning sessions, he came across as very skilled. "He controlled the facts, and his questions came right to the point."

The researchers also acquired a great deal of admiration for the verbal expertise of H. R. Haldeman, the former president's chief of staff. "He liked to have many plans in the works at the same time, even though they were aimed at one goal."

John Dean, who eventually brought the whole complex structure crashing down on all their heads, is also credited with having "really done his homework" and presenting "well-thought- out and developed options."

The closer they looked at the transcripts, say Linde and Goguen, the more obvious it became that Nixon and his advisors perceived the Watergate break-in as a public relations problem.

As for the moral implications of their actions, "A small group of acquaintances rarely discuss morality. They know each other's values. The absence of moral discussion on the tapes is not sufficient to prove that they were not moral people."

They just happened to conspire to deceive the American people and obstruct justice in a criminal investigation.

The scholars point out that their research interests are scientific, not political. Actually, in showing the cleverness of the Watergate crew, their analysis of the tapes constitutes one more damning indictment — if anybody needs another one.

Nixon, Haldeman, Dean, et al as "highly intelligent and skilled political strategists"?

In the only analysis that really mattered — by the House Judiciary Committee and the majority of Americans — they revealed themselves to be probably the stupidest men ever to occupy positions of great power and trust in the nation's history.

There seems to be a feeling among businessmen that the great furor over environment problems will bring about a general stagnation of trade in the years to come.

The oppositie is likely to be true. Significant changes in the mode of living almost automatically bring about a vast demand for new goods and services.

Before the decade is over, probably most of us will be riding in different types of automobiles: someone will have to make, sell and buy the new vehicles.

By 1980 one-half of our population may be living in some new type of home, which will have to be made, sold and bought.

Already national industries and service companies have begun to see the advantage of relocating industries and headquarters in small cities -- and even in once decaying rural villages.

In the near future we must be using power sources which, at the present, have not been developed. This development portends new riches.

Sewage and garbage will become a blessing rather than a curse. After reporcessing it will become high quality fertilizer.

It is true that machines will do more and more work, at the same time creating more and better work for people. The chief enterprise of most persons will be performing an exchange of services.

All of this means new or revitalized business activity. The business man who anticipates and advertises to meet the new needs and wants will continue to be successful.

It caused something of a stir in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. Sitting in a barber's chair, Captain Clark Berkhoudt and his tonsorial friend heard cries for help and a scuffle next door. They investigated to find the aging shopkeeper neighbor wrestling with a holdup youth carrying a sawed-off rifle. The youth had been given money but, not satisfied, was demanding more, only to find that the aged shopkeeper had more spirit than given credit for and had grasped the gun and come to close grips with his assailant.

The youth had the shopkeeper on the floor when the captain and the barber appeared, and soon found himself grasped by the hair and the gun which he held tenaciously. The lad struck out, wounding the captain in the face, and fled, closely followed by the Army man. A second scuffle followed with more blows and a regular fight, till the youth again escaped, making for a getaway car which by this time had disappeared, the accomplice having taken fright. again Captain Berkhoudt gave chase but, not being a young man, was somewhat exhausted. A parking lot attendant also gave chase, and the youth was finally willing to give up quietly when the police appeared on the scene.

Local reporters took up the story, and the announcement of The Salvation Army's Eastern Territory slogan for this year's envangelistic campaign, "Involved with Christ," which was displayed on the outside of the Salvation Army building, gave one of them the heading for his article.

We are proud of our Salvation Army captain, of course. Much, much more of this public-spirited action in aiding the police to keep law and order in our land is needed. But the public is mistaken if it thinks that this kind of involvement is the most difficult and painful in which this captain and all other Salvation Army officers are engaged.

The issues are cut-and-dried when a captain tackles a holdup youth. It requires great physical courage and strength, but there is no ambiguity about who is in the wrong and who ought to be punished. But the issues are not so clear when the captain faces a dispirited youth, perhaps from a broken home, or perhaps deprived, by the economic situation in an affluent nation, of the opportunity to work. The youth's craving for significance or purpose is not then a wrong desire, and if he gets into trouble because these are not fulfilled, the blame is not so eady to apportion. In such an instance, the greatest courage comes for the captain in challenging the indifference of a bureaucratic system. Yes, knocking on closed doors in the cause of others is part of a Savlation Army officer's task.

A home situation might be one of his most tricky assignments. His interference might not be welcome, yet his Christian compassion will not let him wipe his hands of the case. It is not his face and arms which bleed in such an instance, but his heart. To tell a father or mother, wife or husband the patent truth about their actions and way of life, even when on behalf of one of the family, takes great courage and sensitivity, for "blood is thicker than water," and reason does not always triumph over sentiment.

But a spiritual situation demands everything from him. To talk to another about their way of life, their attitudes, their sins; to offer Christ as the way to forgiveness and restoration, even re-creation, and to have Christ's love spurned and defied, is his greatest pain and sorrow. This kind of courage and sacrifice never makes the headlines because it is never seen by the human eye. Even involvement on the human level is not the crucial experience it is for the captain. Human involvement requires only identification with one side. It does not necessarily include identification with more than one side.

For the captian, involvement with Christ means that he is not only the pursuer but the pursued, for Christ loves the winner even when he is the most rebellious. Society can well accept the lesson. Its responsibility lies with the assailant as well as the victim. In the last analysis, it must take the blame for both.

That is why our correctional services work, emphasized in this issue, is so important.

ADDING INSULT TO INJURY

There are times when we can almost feel sorry for the Russians. The embarrassment they suffered when one of their pilots defected (flying a MIG-25 Foxbat jet fighter to Japan) was great enough, but now a Japanese firm is coming out with a 12-inch plastic model of the Foxbat.

Anyone with $2 will be able to own a miniature of what had been the most secret aircraft in the Russian arsenal.

Japanese industry has a reputation for picking up a product, figuring out how to product it at less cost than the original, and selling it back to the people who invented it.

In this case, the Japanese plan only to produce the mantlepiece version of the Foxbat, but that is hardly a consolation to the Russians. Japan will undoubtedly want to crack the Soviet market with the model, adding the further insult of having a top military secret going for a few rubles in Moscow department stores — and marked "Made in Japan," at that. — Jefferson City News-Tribune

WASHINGTON— There is a lot of talk about reform in education. I haven't given this problem much thought until recently when I went on the commencement talk circuit.

It dawned on me that everywhere I went there was something wrong with the graduating class. I couldn't put my finger on it until the students started to receive their diplomas. Then it hit me! The most prevailing discrimination in our schools has to do with people's names.

In every graduating class, the students whose names started with A, B, C and up to L had the best seats up front. The graduates whose last names started with M and ended with Z were stuck in the back. They could not even see the platform because the A to L people were wearing mortarboards and blocking their view.

The A to L group were always the first in the graduation procession marching smartly down the aisles as parents kept snapping photos of them. The M to Z group straggled behind listlessly, failing to keep in step, knowing that by the time they walked by their parents would have run out of film.

After the hymns and speeches the president started to award the diplomas. The audience would be up for the A's and the B's and these students would get the loudest applause. But I noticed as time went on the crowd would become more and more bored, and the applause got less and less. By the time the president got to Mindlin, the only applause you could hear was from the graduate's relatives. When Wyzinski received his diploma it was so quiet you could hear a pin drop.

If it was just graduation exercises we wouldn't have to worry about the problem. But alphabetical discrimination begins the day a child enters grammar school for the first time. Most children on their first day of school are excited about their new life experience.

Then the teacher starts calling their names: "Abernathy, you have the first seat. Altshuler, you have the second seat, Brown the third" and so on. As she reads off the names the child, whose last name starts with a P, an R or an S, is in panic. Will there be enough seats left for him? There usually are, but of course they're in the back of the room. This is the child's first realization that for the rest of his or her life he or she will have to wait until the A to L group's needs are attended to.

When report cards are given out, the Petersons and Raphaels and the Steiglitzes have twice as long to wait for the ax to fall as the Allens, Berliners and Kennedys. In gym classes the Caldwells and Daltons and Evertons and Flahertys get the best lockers and newest equipment. A Youngstein usually winds up with a pair of gym shorts that don't fit him.

When the kids move on to high school the alphabetical discrimination continues. If they apply for college, the A to L group's applications are always on the top if the pile. It takes weeks, sometimes months, for the college admissions director to get down to Shreiner and Thomosino.

Many state universities have been aware of the problem and to solve it they give students numbers instead of names. The only thing wrong with this system is that the numbers are issued alphabetically, and the A to L group get the lower numbers and the M to Z group are stuck with ones so long that they are impossible to remember.

The final indignity comes when the student graduates from college or university and can't find a job. He or she then has to go to the unemployment office to pick up a check. Ackerman gets his by 9:30 in the morning and can spend the rest of the afternoon at the movies. Zuckerman is still there until 5 and has blown the whole day.

What is obviously needed is an Equal Alphabetical Rights Amendment to guarantee against discrimination in last names. I've only talked to two people about it. Gloria Steinem said she weould fight for it. But Bella Abzug said I was out of my mind.

Medicaid-Medicare Mobsters: Crime syndicate buying hospitals, muscling physicians in Multi-Billion-Dollar rackets

WASHINGTON— The real crime combine -- of which the Mafia, as sophisticates know, is only a partner -- is cutting into the $40-billion-a-year Medicaid-Medicare-Welfare complex as definitely as Muhammad Ali waltzed with and took Alfredo Evangelista.

Evidence of this coast-to-coast infiltration and multi-billion-dollar sucking operation is flowing into federal investigative offices. From New York to Florida to California, especially in the two sunbelt states, the underworld is buying into hospitals, or outrightly purchasing them. Nor is the mob neglecting nursing homes, day care centers, home help agencies and other such facilities which can be used to steal from the government and provide a front for moving heroin.

The potential take is enormous. The combine has been watching the "amateurs" steal. The estimate developed by such authorities as the Senate Special Committee on Aging, for example, runs from a minimum of $5.8 billion to $7.6 billion a year in "hard fraud" and deliberate "over-utilization" (unnecessary service).

It all depends on how conservative your arithmetic is.

So underworld gambling money from Las Vegas has begun buying small hospitals in California and more recently in Florida, according to dedicated and knowledgeable sources. There's an ongoing investigation. So that's about all these probers would say.

The mob is also moving in on physicians. It's a new version of the old badger game. A doctor is offered a free trip to Vegas. There he or she is lodged in lavish accommodations. A heavy line of credit is extended in the gambling casinos. The food is free. The drinks cost less. The dice and the roulette wheels roll. Of course the medical person loses. Sometimes heavily.

The doctor is told not to worry about his gambling losses. Just fly home. The physician does. But the casino turns his IOUs over to the muscle for collection. Soft-voiced muscle. Modern type. Knows all about medical services, bills and computers.

So a few weeks later, the medical person who had such a bash in Las Vegas is telephoned. The collector is on the line. About the IOUs? No. Well, says the voice, we don't want to worry you about your losses. We just want to sell you our services. Our supplies. And collect your outstanding bills from delinquent patients and Medicaid-Medicare agencies -- at a commission.

Many doctors have been netted. They don't struggle. The new-type mobster moves up the pipeline. Pads the bills sent along to the Medicaid-Medicare-welfare bureaus.

All this is only part of the thievery which comes to some 10 per cent of the annual $18 billion Medicaid disbursement. Investigators for the Senate Special Committee on Aging estimate that this 10 per cent is in "hard fraud." Actual looting.

This would make a total of $1.8 billion a year ripped off the welfare system, which everybody is reforming these days we hear. This is a conservative estimate by hard-nosed and dedicated probers.

But there's Samuel K. Skinner, crusading U.S. Attorney in Chicago for the Northern District of Illinois. Authorities consider him one of the prosecutorial specialists in welfare crime. An he puts the "hard fraud" estimate at 20 per cent -- or $3.6 billion yearly.

You haven't heard anything yet: there's Medicare. It now runs at the rate of $22 billion annually. Some 10 per cent of that in "hard fraud" means a looters' take of $2.2 billion a year.

Thus even a cellar estimate puts the total amount of actual thievery of Medicaid and Medicare funds at $4 billion yearly. And a reasonable auditor could make a case for the higher figure of $5.8 billion stolen each year by fraudulent and ineligible Medicaid-Medicare clients, crooked physicians, unethical laboratories and money hungry pharmacists.

There's more. This develops in the gray area of over-utilization. For example, a doctor examines a welfare client. The physician orders a throat test. If it shows positive, then another test is required. But the unethical laboratories simply proceed to make both tests without awaiting the results of the first. Simple technique. And simple arithmetic, the multiplication by the millions, will show how those millions are ripped off, by double testing and double billing.

Authoritative sources in the Senate Special Committee on Aging put the over-utilization skimming at 10 per cent of the $18 billion in Medicaid. It could go for Medicare, too. Thus the loss to the federal, state and local governments could run a as high as $12 billion a year in hard fraud and dispensation of unnecessary services.

Obviously the underworld combine just isn't about to pass this blue-chip stuff by. And it isn't. It's the best thing to come down the pike since rum-running. And it's all so antiseptic.

Red Tape Saves Lives

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Bureaucratic red tape, if not President Carter's human rights policies, may have saved a few poor souls in El Salvador from being gunned down by the military dictatorship's tin soldiers.

The incident is worth recording as sad evidence that the bureaucrats in their State Department cubicles were paying little attention to the president's statements. Early in February, the military government of El Salvador placed an order with an American arms dealer for $96,227.85 worth of weapons, including hollow-point bullets and submachine guns.

These ugly goods, according to license applications filed with the State Department, were needed for "internal security." The applications didn't mention that the government had scheduled national elections on February 20, and expected trouble from a restive populace. The weapons were to be used, apparently, against opponents of the military regime.

State Department officials approved the sale, with the exception of a few items, in time for delivery before the election. But in a bureaucracy, a decision is seldom final. Any bureaucrat worth his salt will seek the endorsement of others to reduce his own liability. The weapons sale approval, therefore, was bucked to other desks for comment.

The national elections were held in El Salvador, meanwhile, without the extra hollow-point bullets and submachine guns. Ballot boxes, conveniently stuffed beforehand, were substituted for the real thing. Additional votes were cast in the names of citizens in the cemeteries.

Poll watchers, who questioned these tactics, were intimidated and arrested. To no one's great surprise, the military-backed candidates were triumphant. Protests by the opposition party were brutally suppressed. The government claimed only five people were killed, but our sources say at least a hundred El Salvadorans died.

This sort of unpleasantness could have backfired on the officials who approved the arms sale. They reconsidered the approval which, blessedly, was still circulating in the bureaucratic labyrinth. As one official put it delicately: "The passage of time had produced a different set of conditions in El Salvador."

The previous decision, therefore, was revoked. The sale of some weapons was flatly disapproved; others were held up for "further consideration." The bureaucrats, in other words, had unwittingly prevented the sale of arms which probably would have been used by the military dictatorship to fire upon those who dared to protest the fraudulent elections.

People Poisoning: Thousands of people have been poisoned and at least 40 people have died during the past five years as a result of the overuse of pesticides in Central America. The cotton fields have been saturated with some toxic chemicals that are now banned in the United States.

These are the findings of a United Nations environmental team, which conducted an 18-month study of pesticide use in the cotton-growing areas of El Salvador, Guatamala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

"To varying degrees," the team reported, "almost all components of the Central American ecosystem have been affected." In 1600 samples, the team found various levels of highly toxic DDT, deadly Parathion, and the suspected cancer-causing Toxophene.

The reckless use of pesticides has gone on for over 15 years under the auspices of the wealthy Central American families who own many of the cotton plantations. They've made huge fortunes by selling cotton to Asian countries which, in turn, manufacture clothing for U.S. markets.

At the same time, the environmental devastation caused by the pesticides has forced some impoverished small farmers to leave their land. Their pitiful plots have become so contaminated that they cannot grow enough corn and beans. This has turned them into peons who survive by working for the large cotton plantations.

It was not until some of the land barons' own cattle became contaminated that they began to be concerned about the problem. In the past 15 years, at least $1.7 million worth of beef cattle have been tainted by pesticides.

The UN team was brought to Central America to assess the damage and to introduce pest management techniques. Earlier UN efforts had already brought a gradual reduction in human poisoning from 6,078 cases in 1972 to 2,074 in 1975. The new UN team was able to reduce pesticide use by as much as 63 per cent on test plots.

Footnote: One insect that has resisted the poisonious environment is the tough malaria mosquito, which seems to thrive on pesticides. The Central American governments are now using costly propoxur to fight the deadly mosquito. The result has been fewer sprayings and a rise in the incidence of malaria.

Today's news in brief

Bargain search gets tougher

Higher prices for a wide variety of items pushed up the family grocery bill last month, forcing consumers to search harder than ever for bargains, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. The survey showed that most of the increases affected food rather than nonfood products. Coffee prices continued to soar. Recent cuts by roasters did not affect the supermarket shopper since the retail prices consistently had remained below wholesale levels.

Warhead not bargaining chip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deployment of a new, more powerful nuclear warhead is not a bargaining chip in strategic arms talks with the Russians, although a change in U.S. plans is possible "if the Soviets want to negotiate seriously," the Carter administration says. Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell refused to link the decision to proceed with the Mark 12A warhead and a new computerized guidance system with a Russian refusal to accept U.S. strategic arms limitation proposals made in March. But Powell said Wednesday that the administration might be willing to reconsider the warhead deployment, expected by 1979.

Power to set prices at issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is ready to join the Senate in creating a new energy department, with the White House waging a last-minute battle against a proposal to deny the agency's secretary power over natural gas prices. The House is debating the energy reorganization bill, which would meet a request from President Carter for a new Cabinet agency to administer a national energy policy.

Carter-Burns coziness ebbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suddenly everything isn't so cozy between the Carter administration and Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board. The President didn't seem to mind when Burns almost single-handedly scuttled the new President's $50 tax rebate plan. Carter said the economy was getting along fine without it. But the administration is making it clear it doesn't like recent actions by Burns and the board to increase short-term interest rates.

Rhodesia draws U.S. warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has warned the white Rhodesian government to call home its 700 troops hunting black guerrillas in Mozambique or face the consequences. U.S. officials said pressure tactics are being discussed with Britain and several African nations. They said another condemnation of Rhodesia's white minority government by the United Nations and economic pressure exerted through South Africa were being considered.

All-night session to no avail

PARIS (AP) — The 27-nation conference on international economic cooperation argued all night but failed to agree on a permanent organization for energy negotiations demanded by the industrial nations in the hope of keeping oil prices down. British Foreign Secretary David Owen said an attempt would be made to draft a final communique covering the "considerable" areas of agreement on special aid to the poorest nations and a so-called Common Fund to stabilize prices of primary raw materials.

Teasdale signs pay raise bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — "It looks like the whole legislature is here to see if I'm really going to sign it," Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale quipped as lawmakers, judges and statewide elected officials crowded into his office to watch him sign pay increases for their offices.

Teasdale approved the threebill package in ceremonies Wednesday, signing into law pay boosts which will eventually cost the state taxpayers $5 million a year to implement.

The governor said, however, that the pay raises will not cost the state because they would produce a government "that works, makes sense and is honest and open."

Common Cause in Missouri, a self-styled citizens lobby group, had urged Teasdale to delay signing the pay raises until the legislature approved a proposed conflict of interest bill for state officials. The Citizens Compensation Commission, the panel which originally recommended the pay increases, also suggested the adoption of the ethics code for state officials.

Sirhan to be questioned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Los Angeles County supervisors, seeking to find out whether there was a conspiracy in the killing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will question his convicted assassin, Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Kenneth Hahn and Baxter Ward said they would go to Soledad Prison at Sirhan's request today and "ask him everything we can think of."

Hahn told a news conference he hoped Sirhan's invitation means he has "something he wants to get off his chest."

It will be the first time that Sirhan, 32, has spoken to officials about the killing since he was convicted eight years ago.

His attorney, Godfrey Isaac, has said Sirhan wants to speak openly and try to place his actions in a historical perspective.

The supervisors say they want to know whether anyone else was involved in the slaying.

Sirhan, a Palestinian refugee, shot Kennedy in the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel on June 5, 1968, moments after the senator claimed victory in the California presidential primary.

2 more added to fire toll

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — Officials say they now know which room was the starting point for the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire and they're "very close" to pinpointing the cause. Arson has been ruled out.

Meanwhile, two names have been added to the death list, bringing the toll from Saturday night's fire to 161.

The bodies were found Wednesday, two days after Southgate Fire Chief Dick Riesenberg said he was certain there were no more victims in the pile of rubble that once was one of the Midwest's slickest nightspots.

The dead were identified as Lenora Hill Gentry and Charlene Matthews, both of Cincinnati. Campbell County Coroner Fred Stine said both were part of a 105-member Gospel choral group. All their colleagues escaped.

Officials said the fire started in the club's Zebra Room, just after a wedding party left.

FDA orders baby food recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is recalling 280,000 jars of Beechnut baby food because they contain mold.

The FDA ordered the recall Wednesday because the baby food violates federal requirements that it be free of mold, an agency spokeswoman said. She said the moldy baby food is not believed to represent a health hazard, however.

Tapioca in each of the three baby foods is believed to have contained mold when the lots were produced, the spokeswoman said.

The jars being recalled were identified as: Beechnut Strained Food Dessert with Tapioca in 4¾-ounce jars with lot numbers beginning 7112 and 7131; Beechnut Junior Fruit Dessert with Tapioca in 7¾-ounce jars with lot numbers beginning 7131; and Beechnut Junior Prunes with Tapioca in 7¾-ounce jars with lot

Bargain search gets tougher

Higher prices for a wide variety of items pushed up the family grocery bill last month, forcing consumers to search harder than ever for bargains, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. The survey showed that most of the increases affected food rather than nonfood products. Coffee prices continued to soar. Recent cuts by roasters did not affect the supermarket shopper since the retail prices consistently had remained below wholesale levels.

Warhead not bargaining chip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deployment of a new, more powerful nuclear warhead is not a bargaining chip in strategic arms talks with the Russians, although a change in U.S. plans is possible "if the Soviets want to negotiate seriously," the Carter administration says. Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell refused to link the decision to proceed with the Mark 12A warhead and a new computerized guidance system with a Russian refusal to accept U.S. strategic arms limitation proposals made in March. But Powell said Wednesday that the administration might be willing to reconsider the warhead deployment, expected by 1979.

Power to set prices at issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is ready to join the Senate in creating a new energy department, with the White House waging a last-minute battle against a proposal to deny the agency's secretary power over natural gas prices. The House is debating the energy reorganization bill, which would meet a request from President Carter for a new Cabinet agency to administer a national energy policy.

Carter-Burns coziness ebbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suddenly everything isn't so cozy between the Carter administration and Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board. The President didn't seem to mind when Burns almost single-handedly scuttled the new President's $50 tax rebate plan. Carter said the economy was getting along fine without it. But the administration is making it clear it doesn't like recent actions by Burns and the board to increase short-term interest rates.

Rhodesia draws U.S. warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has warned the white Rhodesian government to call home its 700 troops hunting black guerrillas in Mozambique or face the consequences. U.S. officials said pressure tactics are being discussed with Britain and several African nations. They said another condemnation of Rhodesia's white minority government by the United Nations and economic pressure exerted through South Africa were being considered.

All-night session to no avail

PARIS (AP) — The 27-nation conference on international economic cooperation argued all night but failed to agree on a permanent organization for energy negotiations demanded by the industrial nations in the hope of keeping oil prices down. British Foreign Secretary David Owen said an attempt would be made to draft a final communique covering the "considerable" areas of agreement on special aid to the poorest nations and a so-called Common Fund to stabilize prices of primary raw materials.

Teasdale signs pay raise bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — "It looks like the whole legislature is here to see if I'm really going to sign it," Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale quipped as lawmakers, judges and statewide elected officials crowded into his office to watch him sign pay increases for their offices.

Teasdale approved the threebill package in ceremonies Wednesday, signing into law pay boosts which will eventually cost the state taxpayers $5 million a year to implement.

The governor said, however, that the pay raises will not cost the state because they would produce a government "that works, makes sense and is honest and open."

Common Cause in Missouri, a self-styled citizens lobby group, had urged Teasdale to delay signing the pay raises until the legislature approved a proposed conflict of interest bill for state officials. The Citizens Compensation Commission, the panel which originally recommended the pay increases, also suggested the adoption of the ethics code for state officials.

Sirhan to be questioned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Los Angeles County supervisors, seeking to find out whether there was a conspiracy in the killing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will question his convicted assassin, Sirhan B. Sirhan.

Kenneth Hahn and Baxter Ward said they would go to Soledad Prison at Sirhan's request today and "ask him everything we can think of."

Hahn told a news conference he hoped Sirhan's invitation means he has "something he wants to get off his chest."

It will be the first time that Sirhan, 32, has spoken to officials about the killing since he was convicted eight years ago.

His attorney, Godfrey Isaac, has said Sirhan wants to speak openly and try to place his actions in a historical perspective.

The supervisors say they want to know whether anyone else was involved in the slaying.

Sirhan, a Palestinian refugee, shot Kennedy in the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel on June 5, 1968, moments after the senator claimed victory in the California presidential primary.

2 more added to fire toll

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — Officials say they now know which room was the starting point for the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire and they're "very close" to pinpointing the cause. Arson has been ruled out.

Meanwhile, two names have been added to the death list, bringing the toll from Saturday night's fire to 161.

The bodies were found Wednesday, two days after Southgate Fire Chief Dick Riesenberg said he was certain there were no more victims in the pile of rubble that once was one of the Midwest's slickest nightspots.

The dead were identified as Lenora Hill Gentry and Charlene Matthews, both of Cincinnati. Campbell County Coroner Fred Stine said both were part of a 105-member Gospel choral group. All their colleagues escaped.

Officials said the fire started in the club's Zebra Room, just after a wedding party left.

FDA orders baby food recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is recalling 280,000 jars of Beechnut baby food because they contain mold.

The FDA ordered the recall Wednesday because the baby food violates federal requirements that it be free of mold, an agency spokeswoman said. She said the moldy baby food is not believed to represent a health hazard, however.

Tapioca in each of the three baby foods is believed to have contained mold when the lots were produced, the spokeswoman said.

The jars being recalled were identified as: Beechnut Strained Food Dessert with Tapioca in 4¾-ounce jars with lot numbers beginning 7112 and 7131; Beechnut Junior Fruit Dessert with Tapioca in 7¾-ounce jars with lot numbers beginning 7131; and Beechnut Junior Prunes with Tapioca in 7¾-ounce jars with lot

Mr. Blanton:

This is intended for your column LETTERS TO EDITOR. I believe it is something that needs to be brought before the public and hopefully, many will read the following quotations:

"Animals cannot help themselves. They can only hope that some day man will soften his heart and have pity on their suffering." -- Rev. G. B. Vivian-Evans

"Just as soon and so far as we put into all our schools more humane education, and foster the spirit of justice and kindness towards the lower creatures -- just so soon and so far shall we reach the roots, not only of cruelty but of crime." -- Miriam A. Ferguson

"The uncontrolled breeding of dogs and cats represents one of the greatest tragedies confronting those who work for the protection of animals. With little prospect of being placed in good homes, and with a surplus of 40,000,000 dogs and cats, these creatures are allowed to be born, only to be put to death in a number of ghastly ways. This, indeed, is mankind's legalized crime." -- C. Richard Calore

I BELIEVE THE RIGHTS OF DOGS AND CATS ARE AS SACRED AS OUR OWN.

Carl C. Harris

(THIS IS SUBMITTED TO BE PLACED IN THE LETTERS TO THE EDITOR SECTION)

May 31, 1977

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Darkness had descended upon Memorial Park Cemetery. A violent storm with high winds was ready to break. I saw a car with lights on out in the cemetery. I was closing Memorial Day operations and thought someone visiting the grave of a loved one might be in trouble. Upon investigation, I found the driver of the car had been visiting a grave when she noticed a dog in distress, apparently wounded and unkempt. This gracious and compassionate lady, alone, was trying to get this poor, homeless crteature in her car. I was able to assist in accomplishing this.

I have never witnessed a nobler and more loving act extended to one of God's lower creatures. The driver had merely said, "Mr. Harris, I'm Amy McCord. Will you help me get this poor dog in my car? I want to take it home and care for it."

I could only think of the Master's words, "Inasmuch as you have done it unto the least of these, you have done it unto Me."

I pray that God may give us more Amy McCords--any community is blessed that has even one.

Carl C. Harris

Mr. Blanton:
This is intended for your column LETTERS TO EDITOR. I believe it is something that needs to be brought before the public and hopefully, many will read the following quotations:

"Animals cannot help themselves. They can only hope that some day man will soften his heart and have pity on their suffering." -- Rev. G. B. Vivian-Evans

"Just as soon and so far as we put into all our schools more humane education, and foster the spirit of justice and kindness towards the lower creatures -- just so soon and so far shall we reach the roots, not only of cruelty but of crime." -- Miriam A. Ferguson

"The uncontrolled breeding of dogs and cats represents one of the greatest tragedies confronting those who work for the protection of animals. With little prospect of being placed in good homes, and with a surplus of 40,000,000 dogs and cats, these creatures are allowed to be born, only to be put to death in a number of ghastly ways. This, indeed, is mankind's legalized crime." -- C. Richard Calore

I BELIEVE THE RIGHTS OF DOGS AND CATS ARE AS SACRED AS OUR OWN.

Carl C. Harris

May 31, 1977

Dear Mr. Blanton:
Darkness had descended upon Memorial Park Cemetery. A violent storm with high winds was ready to break. I saw a car with lights on out in the cemetery. I was closing Memorial Day operations and thought someone visiting the grave of a loved one might be in trouble. Upon investigation, I found the driver of the car had been visiting a grave when she noticed a dog in distress, apparently wounded and unkempt. This gracious and compassionate lady, alone, was trying to get this poor, homeless crteature in her car. I was able to assist in accomplishing this.

I have never witnessed a nobler and more loving act extended to one of God's lower creatures. The driver had merely said, "Mr. Harris, I'm Amy McCord. Will you help me get this poor dog in my car? I want to take ft home and care for it."

I could only think of the Master's words, "Inasmuch as you have done it unto the least of these, you have done it unto Me."

I pray that God may give us more Amy McCords--any community is blessed that has even one.

Carl C. Harris

Job chances better for '77 grads

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — This year's college graduates have a 23 per cent better chance of getting a job than did last year's graduates, a national job market survey says.

The 31st annual Endicott Report, released Tuesday, also predicts that hiring will be up 17 per cent for graduates with masters degrees.

The report said the figures, gathered from a May survey, were considerably higher than those gathered in a November survey of employers.

"This good news is a direct correlation with the general improvement in business trends for these companies," said Frank S. Endicott, retired Northwestern University placement director, who has been conducting the survey since 1945.

He noted that 49 per cent of the 118 firms in the May survey said business conditions for their companies were clearly improved or semi-improved, 47 per cent said conditions were about the same and only 4 per cent report business moving down.

Teasdale says PSC appointee will relate to non-affluent

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale said Tuesday that the black woman he appointed to the Public Service Commission would be capable of understanding the problems of the poor and the middle class.

Mrs. Leah Brock McCartney, 63, of University City, will "truly represent the people I've been speaking about in the campaign," Teasdale said when he announced the appointment of the Kinloch municipal court judge to the commission Tuesday.

The governor said he had been specifically looking for a black to serve on the PSC. He also said Mrs. McCartney, who is believed to be the first black to be appointed to the commission, supported Teasdale in his unsuccessful gubernatorial campiagn in 1972.

Teasdale also said Commission Chairman James P. Mulvaney, whose continuation on the utility-regulating panel was in doubt earlier this month because of an offhand remark made by the governor, has agreed to accept appointment of a full six-year term as chairman.

Mulvaney confirmed that the disagreement between Teasdale and himself had been resolved and that he agreed to accept the term. Mulvaney had told the governor last week that he wanted to delay any decision on future PSC service until he saw who Teasdale's other PSC appointments would be .

The governor said, however, that he would not be able to name a replacement for Commissioner A. Robert Pierce, who will resign June 13, until after the legislature adjourns June 15.

His nominee will serve the remainder of Pierce's term until next January, when the Senate must give its consent or rejection to the selection.

Mulvaney said he had discussed potential candidates with top aides to the governor last week and was notified about Mrs. McCartney's selection prior to its announcement.

"I haven't met the lady yet, but I understand she's well qualified," Mulvaney said. He added that the other potential nominees under consideration by Teasdale were also "well qualified," but he declined to disclose any of their names.

An attorney, Mrs. McCartney has served as a Kinloch municipal judge since 1973. A graduate of the George Washington University school of law, she has been a visting law professor at Tulsa University and she taught law at Florida A&M University.

The wife of minister who just moved from St. Louis to Kansas City, Mrs. McCartney has given her pledge to be "fair and ever sympathetic to the needs of the consumer," Teasdale said.

Other appointments announced by the governor Tuesday included:

—Stephen Bradford, commissioner of adminstration. Bradford has been serving as acting director since William Kimsey resigned after Teasdale's first 100 days in office.

—Robert H. Deusenberg of St. Louis County to the state Coordinating Board of Higher Education.

—Dr. Charles W. Johnson of Independence to the Missouri State Board of Health.

—Daniel J. McAuliffe of Webster Groves to the state Banking Board.

Look out Led Zeppelin, here come The Babys

NEW YORK (AP) — Watch out Led Zeppelin and Bad Company. A hard-rocking young British band called The Babys is out to steal your crowns as kings of gut-wrenching "heavy metal" rock.

A group with a raunchy sound featuring screaming guitars, frantic vocals, a pounding rhythm section — and a name like The Babys?

"We were together in London for a long time and we were all 'mods' — (into) The Who and Small Faces. We wanted an unusual English name, a crazy name and as a joke we picked it," lead singer John Waite said before a recent concert here.

"Music is very pretentious now. It really is. There's all kind of bands coming out, doing really heavy things they know nothing about. So we thought as a sort of private joke we'd call ourselves The Babys. And everybody thought, ugh. But we're very aggressive live and we convince them," he said.

"I think rock is very snobby now. There's Led Zeppelin fans, or there's (Bay City) Rollers fans. We don't like that — we want anybody who's into rock and into having a good time."

Waite, who also handles bass chores, met drummer Tony Brock, guitarist Walt Stocker and keyboard player-guitarist Mike Corby in London about two years ago — all are in their 20s — and the combination clicked. The restricted BBC radio playlist and a lack of suitable concert halls prompted them to make a videotape of themselves playing which they distributed to record companies.

The novel approach worked and several record companies entered a bidding war for the band. The small Chrysalis label won by offering a five-album deal for a reported six-figure contract.

The band owes a stylistic debt to heavy metal predecessors like Led Zeppelin, Robin Trower and especially Bad Company.

Waite's vocals echo the bluesy, longing style of Bad Company's Paul Rodgers, while the rhythm section cooks along in Trower fashion. And tunes the band wrote like "Looking For Love" and "If You've Got The Time" stay with you after a single listening.

For their first album, released earlier this year, the band teamed up with Bob Ezrin, who was successful producing such groups as Alice Cooper and Kiss. The combination didn't work.

"He's very objective," Waite said of Ezrin. "He can literally see what can sell and what isn't. So he was introduced to the band and we got along okay. But there was a lot of tension in doing the album because he was trying to make The Babys sound like what people thought The Babys would sound like. And we said, 'Hey look, we're a rock band.'"

Waite is looking forward to the second album, which he promises will be simpler and bluesier.

"The man singers all over the world are into the blues, really," he said. "When you think about it — (Mick) Jagger, (Robert) Plant, (Paul) Rodgers — that's where I hope to come from."

"All English music is derived from American influences. The English have this marvelous talent for turning it around and inverting it. The Stones, Led Zeppelin are doing it. They're all returning to the blues."

Postmasters upset by public disclosure of pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which increased salaries for its top officials without issuing a press release, is upsetting postmasters by going public with their pay.

"If a postmaster's salary is published, people in the town who make less money are bound to be resentful," a spokesman for postmasters says.

The public relations department of the mail agency, sending out news releases and letters to the editor, is disclosing information about area post offices, including the pay of the local postmaster.

As an example, a letter by Postal Service spokesman D. Jamison Cain, published in the Beckley, W. Va., Post-Herald and Register, informed readers that the Coal City, W. Va., postmaster earns $19,044 in salary and benefits.

Frank Miklozek, executive director of the National Association of Postmasters, charged Tuesday the Postal Service policy is designed to create resentment against postmasters. He said the move is part of a campaign to eliminate many postmaster jobs.

But Cain said the public relations effort is an attempt "to show how important the Postal Service is to the local economy."

Another Postal Service source expressed surprise that the postmaster association is complaining about public pay disclosure. He said the organization is suing the government over some raises that were withheld.

"I would think that they would be glad to have their salaries made known," the source said.

Although the Postal Service's top 18 executives received pay raises last month, no press releases were issued, Cain said, because all 18 are staying in their present jobs.

The agency's top executive, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, now receives $66,000, the same as a Cabinet official.

Future executive pay hikes will be made public, Cain said.

Miklozek also charged that the Postal Service, in publicizing postmasters' salaries, is "laying the grondwork" for closing post offices.

The Postal Service for years has eyed the potential savings in closing money-losing rural post offices.

A recent internal study said closing 17,000 of the 30,000 post offices would save $490 million a year. Postal officials say that no such widespread closings are planned.

Teasdale says PSC appointee will relate to non-affluent

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale said Tuesday that the black woman he appointed to the Public Service Commission would be capable of understanding the problems of the poor and the middle class.

Mrs. Leah Brock McCartney, 63, of University City, will "truly represent the people I've been speaking about in the campaign," Teasdale said when he announced the appointment of the Kinloch municipal court judge to the commission Tuesday.

The governor said he had been specifically looking for a black to serve on the PSC. He also said Mrs. McCartney, who is believed to be the first black to be appointed to the commission, supported Teasdale in his unsuccessful gubernatorial campiagn in 1972.

Teasdale also said Commission Chairman James P. Mulvaney, whose continuation on the utility-regulating panel was in doubt earlier this month because of an offhand remark made by the governor, has agreed to accept appointment of a full six-year term as chairman.

Mulvaney confirmed that the disagreement between Teasdale and himself had been resolved and that he agreed to accept the term. Mulvaney had told the governor last week that he wanted to delay any decision on future PSC service until he saw who Teasdale's other PSC appointments would be .

The governor said, however, that he would not be able to name a replacement for Commissioner A. Robert Pierce, who will resign June 13, until after the legislature adjourns June 15.

His nominee will serve the remainder of Pierce's term until next January, when the Senate must give its consent or rejection to the selection.

Mulvaney said he had discussed potential candidates with top aides to the governor last week and was notified about Mrs. McCartney's selection prior to its announcement.

"I haven't met the lady yet, but I understand she's well qualified," Mulvaney said. He added that the other potential nominees under consideration by Teasdale were also "well qualified," but he declined to disclose any of their names.

An attorney, Mrs. McCartney has served as a Kinloch municipal judge since 1973. A graduate of the George Washington University school of law, she has been a visting law professor at Tulsa University and she taught law at Florida A&M University.

The wife of minister who just moved from St. Louis to Kansas City, Mrs. McCartney has given her pledge to be "fair and ever sympathetic to the needs of the consumer," Teasdale said.

Other appointments announced by the governor Tuesday included:

—Stephen Bradford, commissioner of adminstration. Bradford has been serving as acting director since William Kimsey resigned after Teasdale's first 100 days in office.

—Robert H. Deusenberg of St. Louis County to the state Coordinating Board of Higher Education.

—Dr. Charles W. Johnson of Independence to the Missouri State Board of Health.

—Daniel J. McAuliffe of Webster Groves to the state Banking Board.

Look out Led Zeppelin, here come The Babys

NEW YORK (AP) — Watch out Led Zeppelin and Bad Company. A hard-rocking young British band called The Babys is out to steal your crowns as kings of gut-wrenching "heavy metal" rock.

A group with a raunchy sound featuring screaming guitars, frantic vocals, a pounding rhythm section — and a name like The Babys?

"We were together in London for a long time and we were all 'mods' — (into) The Who and Small Faces. We wanted an unusual English name, a crazy name and as a joke we picked it," lead singer John Waite said before a recent concert here.

"Music is very pretentious now. It really is. There's all kind of bands coming out, doing really heavy things they know nothing about. So we thought as a sort of private joke we'd call ourselves The Babys. And everybody thought, ugh. But we're very aggressive live and we convince them," he said.

"I think rock is very snobby now. There's Led Zeppelin fans, or there's (Bay City) Rollers fans. We don't like that — we want anybody who's into rock and into having a good time."

Waite, who also handles bass chores, met drummer Tony Brock, guitarist Walt Stocker and keyboard player-guitarist Mike Corby in London about two years ago — all are in their 20s — and the combination clicked. The restricted BBC radio playlist and a lack of suitable concert halls prompted them to make a videotape of themselves playing which they distributed to record companies.

The novel approach worked and several record companies entered a bidding war for the band. The small Chrysalis label won by offering a five-album deal for a reported six-figure contract.

The band owes a stylistic debt to heavy metal predecessors like Led Zeppelin, Robin Trower and especially Bad Company.

Waite's vocals echo the bluesy, longing style of Bad Company's Paul Rodgers, while the rhythm section cooks along in Trower fashion. And tunes the band wrote like "Looking For Love" and "If You've Got The Time" stay with you after a single listening.

For their first album, released earlier this year, the band teamed up with Bob Ezrin, who was successful producing such groups as Alice Cooper and Kiss. The combination didn't work.

"He's very objective," Waite said of Ezrin. "He can literally see what can sell and what isn't. So he was introduced to the band and we got along okay. But there was a lot of tension in doing the album because he was trying to make The Babys sound like what people thought The Babys would sound like. And we said, 'Hey look, we're a rock band.'"

Waite is looking forward to the second album, which he promises will be simpler and bluesier.

"The man singers all over the world are into the blues, really," he said. "When you think about it — (Mick) Jagger, (Robert) Plant, (Paul) Rodgers — that's where I hope to come from."

"All English music is derived from American influences. The English have this marvelous talent for turning it around and inverting it. The Stones, Led Zeppelin are doing it. They're all returning to the blues."

Postmasters upset by public disclosure of pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which increased salaries for its top officials without issuing a press release, is upsetting postmasters by going public with their pay.

"If a postmaster's salary is published, people in the town who make less money are bound to be resentful," a spokesman for postmasters says.

The public relations department of the mail agency, sending out news releases and letters to the editor, is disclosing information about area post offices, including the pay of the local postmaster.

As an example, a letter by Postal Service spokesman D. Jamison Cain, published in the Beckley, W. Va., Post-Herald and Register, informed readers that the Coal City, W. Va., postmaster earns $19,044 in salary and benefits.

Frank Miklozek, executive director of the National Association of Postmasters, charged Tuesday the Postal Service policy is designed to create resentment against postmasters. He said the move is part of a campaign to eliminate many postmaster jobs.

But Cain said the public relations effort is an attempt "to show how important the Postal Service is to the local economy."

Another Postal Service source expressed surprise that the postmaster association is complaining about public pay disclosure. He said the organization is suing the government over some raises that were withheld.

"I would think that they would be glad to have their salaries made known," the source said.

Although the Postal Service's top 18 executives received pay raises last month, no press releases were issued, Cain said, because all 18 are staying in their present jobs.

The agency's top executive, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, now receives $66,000, the same as a Cabinet official.

Future executive pay hikes will be made public, Cain said.

Miklozek also charged that the Postal Service, in publicizing postmasters' salaries, is "laying the grondwork" for closing post offices.

The Postal Service for years has eyed the potential savings in closing money-losing rural post offices.

A recent internal study said closing 17,000 of the 30,000 post offices would save $490 million a year. Postal officials say that no such widespread closings are planned.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader writes Ann that 55 speed limit is a big joke

Dear Ann Landers: Recently, I drove from Boston to Hartford, Connecticut, a distance of approximately 90 miles. I kept my speed at 57 miles per hour.

Two hundred and eighty-five cars passed me. Many were going at least 70 miles an hour.

A few weeks later I drove from Boston to Springfield on the Massachusetts Turnpike, a distance of about 85 miles. Again, I kept my speed at 57 miles an hour. One hundred and eighty-four cars passed me on that trip.

The 55-mile-an-hour limit is a joke. I hope you will print my letter and remind all Americans that it is their patriotic duty to conserve fuel. – F.J.K.

Dear Mr. F.J.K.: Right on! But something more important than fuel can be conserved by respecting the 55-mile-per-hour limit. Life. Traffic fatalities have dropped considerably since the energy shortage has made it mandatory for motorists to reduce the rate of speed.

P.S.: Where are the Massachusetts and Connecticut highway patrolmen, anyway?

Dear Ann Landers: Please help me understand my husband. Sid and I have been married a little over three years. He has been good to me and I always trusted him – until now.

Last night we went to a party. Sid got slashed. He is the jealous type, so I am very careful about keeping my distance from other men. When I walked into the bar area to freshen my drink, I was stunned to see Sid on the patio kissing another owman. They didn't see me, which was just as well.

On the way home I told Sid what I had witnessed. He admitted it immediately, said he didn't know why he kissed her, said she was "nothing special" and sheepishly mumbled, "I must have been drunker than I thought."

Now I am filled with doubts and suspicions. If he could kiss a woman while I'm WITH him, what might he do when I'm not around? – Jittery

Dear Jit: Never mention the incident again. Behave as if it never happened. Some husbands, like children, will live up (or down) to the standards you set for them.

Don't become a "Nervous Nellie" and give Sid the notion you don't trust him or he may figure so long as he has the name he might as well play the game.

Dear Ann Landers: I just caught up with your column in which a reader took you to task for using the expression "do" the dishes. The proper word, you were told, was "wash," not "do."

Apropos of ethnic, cultural, and geographic terminology, in England we always said "lay" the table. The first time I used that expression in New York was the last. I learned to say "set" in a hurry. -- When In Rome

Dear Rome: I'm not surprised. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann: I'm a guy 17 and 4-10. I get awfully tired of people asking me, "How tall are you?" I hate to give them my measurements. Do you have any suggestions? -- Half Pint

Dear H.P.: Just say, "not very." That should do it.

Cub pilot says he needs a lefthander

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Chicago Cubs are still atop National League East Division standings, but Manager Herman Franks is wondering for how long.

A cautious Franks stated his feelings Wednesday night following a 4-3 Cubs victory in 13 innings over the St. Louis Cardinals by declaring, "We need a left-hander."

Apparently of little cheer to Chicago's field boss were rookie southpaw Willie Hernandez' five strikeouts and two hitless relief innings to post the Cubs' triumph.

"I've only got one," reasoned Franks of a pitching staff on which the 21-year-old Hernandez is the sole left-hander. "If I start him, I don't have anyone in the bullpen. Against this (St. Louis) ball club and against Pittsburgh you've got to have left-handers to win."

While on the subject of winning, Franks also predicted that in the event of a division showdown between his club and St. Louis "the Cardinals will win it easy."

"Why?" he asked rhetorically. "They've got a better ball club than we have. We don't have the pitching they have. I'm not setting anybody up. They have plenty of speed. They've got guys that can really fly."

Such pessimism to the contrary, St. Louis' speed was of little significance during a lengthy struggle eventually settled on the basis of Chicago's strong relief pitching.

The Cards' bullpen leader, Al Hrabosky, was rocked by Bobby Murcer's two-run homer, establishing a 3-2 Cubs edge in the eighth.

Steward Steel wins SFSL tourney

Steward Steel did it the hard way, battling their way all the way through the loser's bracket and beating undefeated Purkey's Restaurant twice in a row to claim the championship of the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League Tournament. Last night's 9-7 win by Steward over Purkey's at the Complex clinched the tournament title for the Steward team, which had lost in the opener of the tournament last week to Purkey's.

Steward Steel, after coming up with a run in the first, rallied for five in a big second inning that spelled the difference. Fred Steward had a two-run triple to highlight the rally, which gave his team a 6-1 lead. Another run in the third and a pair in the fourth made it 9-1.

But Purkey's battled back. Jim Vines clubbed a two-run double in the fifth to make it 9-3, and his team scored four more in the sixth. But winner Mike Cook, a lefthander, held Purkey's scoreless in the seventh to ice the championship.

Steward had won a doubleheader Tuesday night to force the showdown last night for the title.

In a regular season contest that followed, the Eagles moved into a half-game lead in the league standings by nipping Security National Bank 6-5. The Eagles trailed 5-1 going into the fifth, but came up with a pair in the fifth, two more in the sixth and a run in the seventh to win it. Carl Barnett singled home brother Dwayne with the winning run in the seventh.

The Eagles are now 5-2, while Steward Steel and Purkey's Restaurant are 4-2.

Pobst tosses one-hitter for Triangle

A one-hit shutout by Elizabeth Pobst of Triangle was the highlight of last night's action in the Sikeston Womens and Girls Softball Association.

Miss Pobst gave up only a triple to Jody Harris as Triangle won a 10-0 decision over Rotary in the Minor Division. Springs had a pair of safeties to spark Triangle's nine-hit attack, which produced seven runs in the third to put the game away.

Connie Blow ripped three hits for Bridger Plumbing as they toppled Sikeston Motor 10-8. Ginger Eudy and Sharon Richards had a pair of baseknocks apiece to round out Bridger's seven-hit attack. Wendy Lindsey gave up only three hits to earn the victory.

In the Major Division, The Daily Standard raced to a 9-0 lead after the first inning and held on to take a 22-12 win over First National Bank. Sullins and McPhail had pair of hits each to help make a winner out of Lawrence. Wellman, Brown and Vangilder had two safeties apiece for the losers.

Bases on balls and errors were frequent in the other Major Division game as Kiwanis downed Mid-Delta 21-10. Kiwanis scored their 21 runs on only two hits, while Mid-Delta came up with their ten tallies with the benefit of only one safety. The game was tied 10-10 after three innings, but Kiwanis scored four in the forth and seven in the fifth to earn the win.

IBEW nips Eagles in JBR

IBEW rallied for four runs in the fourth inning and another score in the fifth Wednesday night as they came from behind to nip the Eagles 5-4 in Junior Babe Ruth League play at the complex.

IBEW had only one hit in the ballgame, but broke through to overcome the Eagles' 4-0 lead. The Eagles had tallied three times in the first and once more in the third to build their advantage.

Hurley had the only hit for IBEW, while Smith and Brashear had a pair of singles each for the Eagles.

In the other game, Ricky Dock had 2 of Nowell Realty's three hits to pace his team to a 9-3 decision over Hart's Bread. Nowell scored four times in the second and came back with a pair in the third before putting the game away with three in the seventh.

Capahas explode in 8th to rout Sikeston Saints

A big eight- inning rally by the high- flying Cape Capahas gave them a 13-3 victory over Sikeston in a non-league game and handed the winners their seventh win in the same number of starts. Three different Caps garnered three safeties apiece to lead the 18-hit attack.

When the season started the main objective was to avoid a slow start, as per a year ago, but such hasn't been the case so far. In running up a 1-3 record, the team has been outscored 37 to 13. All three losses have been to Cape.

Sunday the Saints travel to Anna, Illinois, for a 1 p.m. doubleheader. Sikeston took three of four regular season matches with Anna last year. Glen Alexander and Jeff Jackson will be the starters for Sikeston in those games.

Things weren't too bad going into the eighth. A pair of overthrows and a misplayed grounder had accounted for four unearned runs and Cape led 6-3. On two different occasions the Saints had left the sacks filled against Vangilder and had lost two runners on the bases. Then the Cape batters exploded and the home crowd witnessed an embarrassing defeat.

"Our players aren't that bad," noted Dale "Bing Devine" Forbis, team general manager. "The starting eight stack up well with any team, but the defense isn't quite up to par yet.

The pitchers will be o-k, with some more support."

A case of Mercury Quicksilver Formula 50 is worth about $20.00 (suggested retail). Mixed at our recommended 50:1 ratio, that's enough for 120 gallons of gas. And the way these Merc's squeeze hours out of every drop, that's a lot of running on our money.

This offer is limited to June 30. Come in now, pick your Merc fishing engine, and let us set you up in the best oil deal you've seen in a long time.

Steward Steel wins SFSL tourney

Steward Steel did it the hard way, battling their way all the way through the loser's bracket and beating undefeated Purkey's Restaurant twice in a row to claim the championship of the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League Tournament. Last night's 9-7 win by Steward over Purkey's at the Complex clinched the tournament title for the Steward team, which had lost in the opener of the tournament last week to Purkey's.

Steward Steel, after coming up with a run in the first, rallied for five in a big second inning that spelled the difference. Fred Steward had a two-run triple to highlight the rally, which gave his team a 6-1 lead. Another run in the third and a pair in the fourth made it 9-1.

But Purkey's battled back. Jim Vines clubbed a two-run double in the fifth to make it 9-3, and his team scored four more in the sixth. But winner Mike Cook, a lefthander, held Purkey's scoreless in the seventh to ice the championship.

Steward had won a doubleheader Tuesday night to force the showdown last night for the title.

In a regular season contest that followed, the Eagles moved into a half-game lead in the league standings by nipping Security National Bank 6-5. The Eagles trailed 5-1 going into the fifth, but came up with a pair in the fifth, two more in the sixth and a run in the seventh to win it. Carl Barnett singled home brother Dwayne with the winning run in the seventh.

The Eagles are now 5-2, while Steward Steel and Purkey's Restaurant are 4-2.

Pobst tosses one-hitter for Triangle

A one-hit shutout by Elizabeth Pobst of Triangle was the highlight of last night's action in the Sikeston Womens and Girls Softball Association.

Miss Pobst gave up only a triple to Jody Harris as Triangle won a 10-0 decision over Rotary in the Minor Division. Springs had a pair of safeties to spark Triangle's nine-hit attack, which produced seven runs in the third to put the game away.

Connie Blow ripped three hits for Bridger Plumbing as they toppled Sikeston Motor 10-8. Ginger Eudy and Sharon Richards had a pair of baseknocks apiece to round out Bridger's seven-hit attack. Wendy Lindsey gave up only three hits to earn the victory.

In the Major Division, The Daily Standard raced to a 9-0 lead after the first inning and held on to take a 22-12 win over First National Bank. Sullins and McPhail had pair of hits each to help make a winner out of Lawrence. Wellman, Brown and Vangilder had two safeties apiece for the losers.

Bases on balls and errors were frequent in the other Major Division game as Kiwanis downed Mid-Delta 21-10. Kiwanis scored their 21 runs on only two hits, while Mid-Delta came up with their ten tallies with the benefit of only one safety. The game was tied 10-10 after three innings, but Kiwanis scored four in the forth and seven in the fifth to earn the win.

IBEW nips Eagles in JBR

IBEW rallied for four runs in the fourth inning and another score in the fifth Wednesday night as they came from behind to nip the Eagles 5-4 in Junior Babe Ruth League play at the complex.

IBEW had only one hit in the ballgame, but broke through to overcome the Eagles' 4-0 lead. The Eagles had tallied three times in the first and once more in the third to build their advantage.

Hurley had the only hit for IBEW, while Smith and Brashear had a pair of singles each for the Eagles.

In the other game, Ricky Dock had 2 of Nowell Realty's three hits to pace his team to a 9-3 decision over Hart's Bread. Nowell scored four times in the second and came back with a pair in the third before putting the game away with three in the seventh.

Capahas explode in 8th to rout Sikeston Saints

A big eight- inning rally by the high- flying Cape Capahas gave them a 13-3 victory over Sikeston in a non-league game and handed the winners their seventh win in the same number of starts. Three different Caps garnered three safeties apiece to lead the 18-hit attack.

When the season started the main objective was to avoid a slow start, as per a year ago, but such hasn't been the case so far. In running up a 1-3 record, the team has been outscored 37 to 13. All three losses have been to Cape.

Sunday the Saints travel to Anna, Illinois, for a 1 p.m. doubleheader. Sikeston took three of four regular season matches with Anna last year. Glen Alexander and Jeff Jackson will be the starters for Sikeston in those games.

Things weren't too bad going into the eighth. A pair of overthrows and a misplayed grounder had accounted for four unearned runs and Cape led 6-3. On two different occasions the Saints had left the sacks filled against Vangilder and had lost two runners on the bases. Then the Cape batters exploded and the home crowd witnessed an embarrassing defeat.

"Our players aren't that bad," noted Dale "Bing Devine" Forbis, team general manager. "The starting eight stack up well with any team, but the defense isn't quite up to par yet.

The pitchers will be o-k, with some more support."

The case of the potted partner

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Larry and George formed a business partnership that soon began making money as if it were a subsidiary of Fort Knox. Unfortunately, as the money began rolling in, Larry had to be rolled out. He became a constant boozer and then an alcoholic, and he had to be rolled out of every gin mill in the area.

Unable to operate a business with a tippling partner, George finally decided that Larry had to go. Cornering Larry in one of Larry's rare sober moments, he got him to sign over to him all of his interests in te business for a substantial sum of money. Larry then disappeared into a bottle for several months. When he reappeared, he decided that selling out to George hadn't been such a good idea and he demanded his reinstatement in the partnership.

"Sorry, old buddy," was George's answer, "but I bought you out fair and square and I've got your signature on a piece of paper to prove it."

"That piece of paper isn't worth a hill of beans," said Larry. "I'm an alcoholic. When I signed it, I didn't know what I was doing. I was sober at the time!"

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you allow alcoholic Larry to void his agreement because he was sober when he signed it?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a person may not avoid a contract on the grounds that he's an alcoholic if, at the time he signed it, he was sober and in possession of his faculties.

Union seniority ruling rejects discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minority workers who find themselves held back from better and higher paying jobs by union seniority systems perpetuating on-the-job discrimination cannot necessarily turn to the courts for help, the Supreme Court says.

In a 7-2 decision Tuesday, the court ruled in effect that discriminatory employment policies practiced before the Civil Rights Act took effect in July 1965, are immune from legal challenge.

In some instances, the ruling means legitimate union seniority agreements may allow the effects of past discrimination to survive, free from legal remedy.

The high court's ruling, reached in the challenge of a Teamsters Union seniority system for the long-haul trucking industry, went against the rulings reached by every lower court that considered the issue.

A majority of the justices decided that Congress, in passing the civil rights legislation, did not mean to outlaw existing seniority lists which on their face did not discriminate on the basis of race or sex.

To strike down such lists would "destroy or water down the vested seniority rights of employes simply because their employer had engaged in discrimination" before the act took effect, the court said.

Blacks and Mexican-Americans sued the trucking firms they worked for and the Teamsters, alleging that they were "locked in" to their city driver jobs while more lucrative over-the-road driving assignments were held by whites with more seniority.

In another split decision, the court laid down strict limits on how far government can intrude on the family.

Using the case of an East Cleveland, Ohio, grandmother, the court voted 5-4 to restrict any community's power to say which members of a family may live together.

The court struck down a municipal zoning law which tried to limit single-family dwellings to its own definition of family.

The court's majority said the city's definition was too great an intrusion on family rights, and indicated that no law can tell a family which members may live under one roof.

In another case the court refused to postpone the imprisonment of former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and one-time White House aide H.R. Haldeman.

The action clears the way for U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided over the Watergate cover-up trial in which both men were convicted, to send Mitchell and Haldeman to prison.

On other matters Tuesday, the court:

—Agreed to decide whether the fathers of illegitimate children have a right to object to the adoption of their children.

—Ruled unanimously that states have the power to deny unemployment compensation to workers who are laid off because of a labor dispute not directly involving their employer.

—Struck down the way Mississippi elects members of its state legislature and, for the fifth time in 11 years, ordered a lower federal court to come up with a reapportionment plan for the state legislature that can pass a constitutional review.

Baggage limit is raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for summer vacation, new rules are going into effect permiting travelers on most overseas flights to carry a lot more luggage.

Beginning Wednesay, free baggage allowances on most flights will be based on the number of pieces a passenger is carrying and on their size rather than on weight, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

Passengers holding first-class tickets will be allowed two bags, each limited in size to no more than 62 inches, plus a 45-inch carry-on bag. The size of a bag is the sum of its length, width and depth.

Economy-class passengers can check two free bags, totaling 106 inches, provided that neither exceeds 62 inches. They also are entitled to a 45-inch carry-on piece of luggage.

Based on standard baggage sizes, the total of 106 inches would permit a passenger to carry free of charge a man's two-suiter and a three-suiter. The 45-incher would match bags designed to fit snugly under an aircraft seat.

Present free baggage allowances on overseas flights limit first-class passengers to 66 pounds and economy class to 44 poundf. In the latter case, that usually limits a passenger to one checked bag and one small carry-on.

For several years, U.S. airlines have permitted travelers on domestic and Caribbean flights two large checked bags and one carry-on, with no weight restriction.

The new rules apply to most countries, but exclude travel between the United States and countries in Central and South America. A CAB spokesman said several Latin American airlines are declining to participate because they can make money on excess baggage charges.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you allow alcoholic Larry to void his agreement because he was sober when he signed it?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a person may not avoid a contract on the grounds that he's an alcoholic if, at the time he signed it, he was sober and in possession of his faculties.

Union seniority ruling rejects discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minority workers who find themselves held back from better and higher paying jobs by union seniority systems perpetuating on-the-job discrimination cannot necessarily turn to the courts for help, the Supreme Court says.

In a 7-2 decision Tuesday, the court ruled in effect that discriminatory employment policies practiced before the Civil Rights Act took effect in July 1965, are immune from legal challenge.

In some instances, the ruling means legitimate union seniority agreements may allow the effects of past discrimination to survive, free from legal remedy.

The high court's ruling, reached in the challenge of a Teamsters Union seniority system for the long-haul trucking industry, went against the rulings reached by every lower court that considered the issue.

A majority of the justices decided that Congress, in passing the civil rights legislation, did not mean to outlaw existing seniority lists which on their face did not discriminate on the basis of race or sex.

To strike down such lists would "destroy or water down the vested seniority rights of employes simply because their employer had engaged in discrimination" before the act took effect, the court said.

Blacks and Mexican-Americans sued the trucking firms they worked for and the Teamsters, alleging that they were "locked in" to their city driver jobs while more lucrative over-the-road driving assignments were held by whites with more seniority.

In another split decision, the court laid down strict limits on how far government can intrude on the family.

Using the case of an East Cleveland, Ohio, grandmother, the court voted 5-4 to restrict any community's power to say which members of a family may live together.

The court struck down a municipal zoning law which tried to limit single-family dwellings to its own definition of family.

The court's majority said the city's definition was too great an intrusion on family rights, and indicated that no law can tell a family which members may live under one roof.

In another case the court refused to postpone the imprisonment of former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and one-time White House aide H.R. Haldeman.

The action clears the way for U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided over the Watergate cover-up trial in which both men were convicted, to send Mitchell and Haldeman to prison.

On other matters Tuesday, the court:

—Agreed to decide whether the fathers of illegitimate children have a right to object to the adoption of their children.

—Ruled unanimously that states have the power to deny unemployment compensation to workers who are laid off because of a labor dispute not directly involving their employer.

—Struck down the way Mississippi elects members of its state legislature and, for the fifth time in 11 years, ordered a lower federal court to come up with a reapportionment plan for the state legislature that can pass a constitutional review.

Henderson gets medal

POINT LOOKOUT — Trennis Henderson of Portageville was presented the journalism award at the 69th annual awards assembly at the School of the Ozarks May 17. The award, established by the journalism department, is a gold medal given to an outstanding student at School of the Ozarks.

Henderson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Henderson of Portageville, served as assistant editor of the school publication, SOTO.

Regina Eason on honor list

HENDERSON, Tenn. — Regina Kay Eason, daughter of Mr. Edward Elmo Eason, Sikeston, has been placed on the president's list at Freed-Hardeman College for the spring semester, 1977.

In order to be eligible for the president's list, a student must earn a 3.30 or above grade point average (based on the 4.00 scale).

Regina, a graduate of Sikeston High School, is majoring in elementary education.

Freed-Hardeman College, a fully accredited, senior, Christian college, continues to "Teach how to live and how to make a living."

Baggage limit is raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just in time for summer vacation, new rules are going into effect permiting travelers on most overseas flights to carry a lot more luggage.

Beginning Wednesay, free baggage allowances on most flights will be based on the number of pieces a passenger is carrying and on their size rather than on weight, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

Passengers holding first-class tickets will be allowed two bags, each limited in size to no more than 62 inches, plus a 45-inch carry-on bag. The size of a bag is the sum of its length, width and depth.

Economy-class passengers can check two free bags, totaling 106 inches, provided that neither exceeds 62 inches. They also are entitled to a 45-inch carry-on piece of luggage.

Based on standard baggage sizes, the total of 106 inches would permit a passenger to carry free of charge a man's two-suiter and a three-suiter. The 45-incher would match bags designed to fit snugly under an aircraft seat.

Present free baggage allowances on overseas flights limit first-class passengers to 66 pounds and economy class to 44 poundf. In the latter case, that usually limits a passenger to one checked bag and one small carry-on.

For several years, U.S. airlines have permitted travelers on domestic and Caribbean flights two large checked bags and one carry-on, with no weight restriction.

The new rules apply to most countries, but exclude travel between the United States and countries in Central and South America. A CAB spokesman said several Latin American airlines are declining to participate because they can make money on excess baggage charges.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1953, Britain's Queen Elizabeth II was crowned in Westminster Abbey.

On this date:

In 1851, Maine became the first state to enact a prohibition law.

In 1886, President Grover Cleveland married his ward, Frances Folsom, at a White House wedding.

In 1924, Congress conferred citizenship upon all American Indians.

In 1941, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini held a war meeting at Brennar Pass in the Alps.

In 1944, the United States opened a bomber base in the Soviet Union to carry out shuttle raids against Germany.

In 1969, the Australian aircraft carrier, Melbourne, sliced through the U.S. destroyer, Frank E. Evans, during maneuvers in the South China Sea. Seventy-four American lives were lost.

Ten years ago: More than 600 shouting landlords smashed the doors the New York City Hall and battled police as they tried to see Mayor John Lindsay to protest a strike by apartment house workers.

Five years ago: Soviet and West German envoys reached a last-minute compromise to clear the way for the signing of a Big Four agreement on Berlin.

One year ago: King Juan Carlos of Spain addressed a joint session of the U.S. Congress and pledged that Spaniards would be guaranteed full political rights.

Today's birthdays: The exiled King of Greece, Constantine II is 37. Former astronaut Charles Conrad is 47.

Thought for today: There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so. — William Shakespeare, 1564-1616.

Fire damages milking equipment

Milking equipment was extensively damaged Wednesday afternoon when a fire broke out in the back of a pickup truck belonging to Macke's Farm Service of Gordonville. The fire was discovered about 1 p.m. in the parking lot of Two-Tony's Restaurant. Public safety officers said the fire apparently started from a cigarette dropped among the cardboard boxes. Merrell's use of credit card under investigation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Cole County Prosecuting Attorney James McHenry is investigating possible violations of state law in connection with Sen. Norman Merrell's use of a state-financed credit card to make more than $1,900 worth of telephone class to a Shelbina beauty shop operator in 1975 and 1976, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported today.

"He has claimed it was state business and she has claimed the same thing," McHenry said. "We would have to prove it beyond a resonable doubt" that the calls were related to private matters.

"I'm drawing no conclusions," McHenry said. "If I believe it from the facts, then I would have to file an information."

Published reports earlier showed Merrell, Senate president pro tem, charged to his state credit card 543 telephone calls covering 8,473 minutes during 19 months of 1975 and 1976. The calls were made to Mrs. Carlene Orr, recently named executive secretary of the state Cosmetology Board.

Merrell, a Monticello Democrat, has said the calls made in 1976 were related to Mrs. Orr's involvement on the state board and that the conversations concerned "beauty schools and state business."

He has said the calls in 1975, before Mrs. Orr was a member of the state beauticians' board, were related to "constituent business." Mrs. Orr is a resident of Merrell's northeast Missouri district.

McHenry said he would not comment further on the matter until he completes his review of telephone company records as well as those on file with the state Division of Accounting and in the state archives.

Sears Tower spokesman hopes climbers stay away

CHICAGO (AP) — A Sears Tower spokesman knew what was coming when he answered the phone.

The newsman who called said: "Since the Sears Tower is the tallest building in the world, you know what I'm going to ask, don't you?"

"I hope not," he said.

"Do you think anyone could climb Sears Tower?"

Sears Tower is 110 stories, the same as the World Trade Center in New York City which was scaled Thursday by an amateur moutaineer. But Sears Tower rises 1,454 feet in the southwest section of Chicago's downtown area—104 feet higher than the World Trade Center.

"I certainly can't say that someone can't climb Sears Tower, but it would be very dangerous," said the spokesman. "I wouldn't want to try it. It has a flat surface of aluminum and glass, but it doesn't have channels that a climbing rig could be hooked into like the other place."

"What about the rails that run up and down the sides for the automatic window washers to travel? Couldn't those be utilized for a climb?" asked the newsman.

"Never gave that any thought. They are awfully small rails."

"What precautions are being taken to prevent someone from trying to scale the tower?"

"I don't kown what kind of precautions we can take. We have security guards around the clock. I don't know if they have been told to be alerted for such a thing. If they were, they wouldn't tell us. It's security business. All I can say is that we have enough of them, but it's a security matter and I can't say how many we have."

"Well," continued the caller, "At least there is a lot easier way of getting to the top, even if the Skydeck is up there only 103 stories instead of all the way."

"That's right. I would like to emphasize that. We average 6,000 visitors a day to the Skydeck."

"You don't seem too concerned that someone will try to climb to the top to beat the other guy's record of going up only on the world's second highest building."

"All I can say is that I hope I don't have to report that someone is trying it," said the spokesman, ending the conversation."

IRS told 'simplify'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of letters, one of them exhorting the Internal Revenue Service to "Simplify! Simplify! Simplify!" are pouring into the nation's tax offices at government request.

Officials say 470 persons so far have taken advantage of a once-a-year opportunity to tell the IRS how to run its affairs. The agency invites the suggestions as part of its annual tax form review.

Mike Gallagher, acting chief of the IRS tax form development branch, said Monday the responses show "taxpayers are becoming more conscious of the tax forms' complexity."

Nearly as many letter-writers complained about the fairness of the tax system as about the forms, he said. The complaint voiced most often was that wealthy taxpayers allegedly do not pay their fair share in taxes.

Many taxpayers pleaded with the IRS to make tax forms easier to comprehend, a request Gallagher said was a familiar refrain.

But he rejected a suggestion by Robert P. Aronoff of Pasadena, Calif., that all tax forms should be tested on eighth-grade students before being unleashed on the public.

"The terminology doesn't lend itself to that grade, although we try to reduce it to the lowest possible reading level," Gallagher said. "If the forms are complex, it's because of the law."

He emphasized that the job of the IRS is to collect taxes, not to devise the laws which determine how much taxpayers must pay. Gallagher said the IRS only carries out the laws Congress enacts, adding that the aim of the tax form review is to help taxpayers comlete their tax forms.

Included in the suggestions received by the IRS was one from Edward J. Hauck of New Port Richey, Fla., who proposed discarding all existing tax forms in favor of new ones to be prepared by a committee composed of citizens with no more than a high school education.

Conway B. Moncure of Blackstone, Va., noting that tax Form 1040 has been altered every year since 1969, suggested it should be "a criminal offense" to change a tax form.

Marisu Fenton of Dallas, Tex., said her frustrations with trying to complete tax forms leads her to believe there is "a collusive arrangement" between the IRS and professional income tax preparation organizations.

And J.W. Marron of Costa Mesa, Calif., said the tax instructions should include a glossary of terms "in the simplest language possible."

Crash victims' bodies taken to Tennessee

CHARLESTON— The bodies of six accident victims killed in an automobile accident at 5:45 a.m. Tuesday on Interstate 57 near Charleston were transferred Wednesday night from Sparks Funeral Home at Charleston to the Jett Funeral Home in Collierville, Tann.

Services for Willie T. Young, 30, Patricia Ann Young, 30, Nicole Young, 7, Willie T. Young Jr., 6, Terry Smith, 17, and Ronnie Stone, 15, will be conducted Sunday afternoon in Collierville Baptist Church.

Burial will be in a Collierville cemetery.

Sikeston woman is WWC grad

FULTON— Ginger Eileen Ferrell graduated with a bachelor of science degree from William Woods College for women at Fulton. Miss Ferrell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flaire Ferrell, of Sikeston. Her major course of study at WWC was business and home economics.

Senator Mary Gant, 9th District, Kansas City, was commencement speaker at the mid-May ceremony and she received an honorary degree from the college.

Merrell's use of credit card under investigation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Cole County Prosecuting Attorney James McHenry is investigating possible violations of state law in connection with Sen. Norman Merrell's use of a state-financed credit card to make more than $1,900 worth of telephone class to a Shelbina beauty shop operator in 1975 and 1976, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported today.

"He has claimed it was state business and she has claimed the same thing," McHenry said. "We would have to prove it beyond a resonable doubt" that the calls were related to private matters.

"I'm drawing no conclusions," McHenry said. "If I believe it from the facts, then I would have to file an information."

Published reports earlier showed Merrell, Senate president pro tem, charged to his state credit card 543 telephone calls covering 8,473 minutes during 19 months of 1975 and 1976. The calls were made to Mrs. Carlene Orr, recently named executive secretary of the state Cosmetology Board.

Merrell, a Monticello Democrat, has said the calls made in 1976 were related to Mrs. Orr's involvement on the state board and that the conversations concerned "beauty schools and state business."

He has said the calls in 1975, before Mrs. Orr was a member of the state beauticians' board, were related to "constituent business." Mrs. Orr is a resident of Merrell's northeast Missouri district.

McHenry said he would not comment further on the matter until he completes his review of telephone company records as well as those on file with the state Division of Accounting and in the state archives.

Sears Tower spokesman hopes climbers stay away

CHICAGO (AP) — A Sears Tower spokesman knew what was coming when he answered the phone.

The newsman who called said: "Since the Sears Tower is the tallest building in the world, you know what I'm going to ask, don't you?"

"I hope not," he said.

"Do you think anyone could climb Sears Tower?"

Sears Tower is 110 stories, the same as the World Trade Center in New York City which was scaled Thursday by an amateur moutaineer. But Sears Tower rises 1,454 feet in the southwest section of Chicago's downtown area—104 feet higher than the World Trade Center.

"I certainly can't say that someone can't climb Sears Tower, but it would be very dangerous," said the spokesman. "I wouldn't want to try it. It has a flat surface of aluminum and glass, but it doesn't have channels that a climbing rig could be hooked into like the other place."

"What about the rails that run up and down the sides for the automatic window washers to travel? Couldn't those be utilized for a climb?" asked the newsman.

"Never gave that any thought. They are awfully small rails."

"What precautions are being taken to prevent someone from trying to scale the tower?"

"I don't kown what kind of precautions we can take. We have security guards around the clock. I don't know if they have been told to be alerted for such a thing. If they were, they wouldn't tell us. It's security business. All I can say is that we have enough of them, but it's a security matter and I can't say how many we have."

"Well," continued the caller, "At least there is a lot easier way of getting to the top, even if the Skydeck is up there only 103 stories instead of all the way."

"That's right. I would like to emphasize that. We average 6,000 visitors a day to the Skydeck."

"You don't seem too concerned that someone will try to climb to the top to beat the other guy's record of going up only on the world's second highest building."

"All I can say is that I hope I don't have to report that someone is trying it," said the spokesman, ending the conversation.

IRS told 'simplify'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of letters, one of them exhorting the Internal Revenue Service to "Simplify! Simplify! Simplify!" are pouring into the nation's tax offices at government request.

Officials say 470 persons so far have taken advantage of a once-a-year opportunity to tell the IRS how to run its affairs. The agency invites the suggestions as part of its annual tax form review.

Mike Gallagher, acting chief of the IRS tax form development branch, said Monday the responses show "taxpayers are becoming more conscious of the tax forms' complexity."

Nearly as many letter-writers complained about the fairness of the tax system as about the forms, he said. The complaint voiced most often was that wealthy taxpayers allegedly do not pay their fair share in taxes.

Many taxpayers pleaded with the IRS to make tax forms easier to comprehend, a request Gallagher said was a familiar refrain.

But he rejected a suggestion by Robert P. Aronoff of Pasadena, Calif., that all tax forms should be tested on eighth-grade students before being unleashed on the public.

"The terminology doesn't lend itself to that grade, although we try to reduce it to the lowest possible reading level," Gallagher said. "If the forms are complex, it's because of the law."

He emphasized that the job of the IRS is to collect taxes, not to devise the laws which determine how much taxpayers must pay. Gallagher said the IRS only carries out the laws Congress enacts, adding that the aim of the tax form review is to help taxpayers comlete their tax forms.

Included in the suggestions received by the IRS was one from Edward J. Hauck of New Port Richey, Fla., who proposed discarding all existing tax forms in favor of new ones to be prepared by a committee composed of citizens with no more than a high school education.

Conway B. Moncure of Blackstone, Va., noting that tax Form 1040 has been altered every year since 1969, suggested it should be "a criminal offense" to change a tax form.

Marisu Fenton of Dallas, Tex., said her frustrations with trying to complete tax forms leads her to believe there is "a collusive arrangement" between the IRS and professional income tax preparation organizations.

And J.W. Marron of Costa Mesa, Calif., said the tax instructions should include a glossary of terms "in the simplest language possible."
